Reagan, Soviet leader may meet

Combined wire services

WASHINGTON — President Reagan suggested Monday that he and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev "have a talk" in New York this June or July to discuss nuclear arms control.

Reagan said he would address a United Nations disarmament conference shortly after returning from this June's NATO meeting and Western economic summit conference at Versailles, France.

"This whole idea . . . of arms reduction, arms control, is one of the most important things that is facing us," the president told reporters at a hastily called question-and-answer session in the Oval Office. "I hope we'll both (he and Brezhnev) be able to address the conference."

White House officials insisted the call for a meeting with Brezhnev was not related to current reports from Moscow that the Kremlin leader is ailing. Until now, the administration has ruled out any summit-type session before the end of the year at the earliest.

Reagan said he was not suggesting a formal summit meeting with Brezhnev, who was last in the United States in 1973 to meet with former President Richard Nixon.

When a reporter asked about a full summit meeting, Reagan replied: "Well, the imagery that you bring up with that — whether that means a full-blown summit conference — no, I think that if he is here and we both bring up that subject (of disarmament), I think it would be well if he and I had a talk."

PRESIDENT REAGAN
He'd like to talk

The president said he hoped "very much" that the Soviet leader would speak to the U.N. conference.

Reagan fielded questions for about 13 minutes from about 50 reporters gathered around his desk in the Oval Office. The session, which bore a resemblance to the informal once or twice-weekly meetings the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt held with the press, was the first of a series of such informal get-togethers the president plans with the news media, White House aides said.

"I think that this whole idea that I have been talking about since back in the campaign of arms reduction, arms control, is one of the most important things that is facing us, and, as I say, I hope that we'll both be able to address the conference."

A White House spokesman said later Reagan has "no indication" Brezhnev plans to attend the U.N. session June 7 through July 9 — the General Assembly's second special session devoted to disarmament.

Every president starting with Harry Truman has addressed the General Assembly, the last being Jimmy Carter in October 1977.

Reagan, reminded Monday of reports that Brezhnev is ill, said, "We've had no confirmation of anything of that kind."

Reagan, responding to questions, said he would like to meet with Brezhnev — "Naturally, a head of state that's here in our own country, yes I would, very much, think that he and I would have a meeting."

He shied away from calling any such session a full-scale "summit."

Reagan reiterated his contention the Soviets enjoy nuclear superiority, and said he does not regret saying so publicly at his nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday evening.

"No, I am not sorry that I said it, because we know for sure the Russians know that," he said. "I think the American people ought to be able to know everything they know."

British armada sails for embattled islands

Combined wire services

LONDON — A Royal Navy task force was sailing for the South Atlantic Monday as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher named Francis Pym to succeed Lord Carrington as her foreign secretary.

Lord Carrington and his two chief ministers resigned Monday, the first government casualties of the "humiliating affront" of Argentina's conquest of the Falkland Islands.

Defense Secretary John Nott also offered his resignation but Thatcher refused it — at least for now.

Nott's future, and possibly that of the Thatcher government, may depend on whether Britain succeeds, either by diplomatic or military means, in regaining the islands it has held since 1833, albeit under constant dispute with Argentina.

Britain's response to Friday's invasion began Monday at Portsmouth when the largest Royal Navy task force since the Suez invasion of 1956 got under way, led by the aircraft carriers Invincible and Hermes.

As the British fleet sailed, there were these developments:

•Argentina poured more troops and weapons into the islands to defend against any attempt to recapture them by force.

•Britons in Argentina were advised to leave the country.

•Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez told a protocol session of the Organization of American States in Washington that his country may invoke the Rio Treaty of 1947, calling on OAS members — including the United States — to help defend the islands against British "colonialism."

•There were hints that both British and Latin American diplomats were seeking to initiate negotiations to defuse the crisis.

•President Reagan said the United States is ready to act as an "honest broker" and help resolve the dispute "without bloodshed."

Falklands Governor Rex Hunt, British government officials from Buenos Aires and a Royal Marine detachment, which was captured after a fierce resistance to the invaders, returned to Britain Monday from Uruguay.

Governor Hunt said the Argentine landing "surprised" the defenders, but the Royal Marines killed 15 and wounded nine troops, many more than Buenos Aires has admitted. He praised the defense the marines put up before they were overwhelmed.

Among the pilots for the Sea King helicopters aboard the carriers is Prince Andrew, 22, the queen's second son. Buckingham Palace said, "He is a serving officer."

Federal prosecutors press for quick trial of Hinckley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Monday decided against seeking Supreme Court review of disputed evidence in the case against accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr.

That step cleared the way for his trial to begin immediately.

Earlier in the day a federal appeals court refused to reconsider a ruling barring use of illegally seized evidence at Hinckley's trial.

Federal prosecutors could have appealed to the Supreme Court for permission to use material they said was crucial to help rebut Hinckley's insanity defense.

But in a brief statement a Justice Department spokesman said the government will ask U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker to set a trial date for Hinckley, whose case has been delayed several times while lawyers fought over the evidence.

"Although we continue to believe the case presents important issues which have not been correctly resolved, we have concluded that the broader interests of justice require that there be no further delay of the trial of this case," said department spokesman Arthur Brill.

Hinckley, 26, is accused of trying to assassinate President Reagan and trying to kill White House press secretary Jim Brady and two other men outside a Washington hotel on March 30, 1981.

More than a year after the attack on the president, Hinckley is being held in solitary confinement at the Army stockade at Fort Meade, Md., near Washington.

His trial has been postponed three times. Hinckley faces life in prison if convicted of the most serious charges against him.

The material in dispute includes statements Hinckley made to law enforcement officers following his arrest, and personal notes seized from his jail cell last July.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington ruled in February that the information was illegally obtained and cannot be used as evidence at his trial.

The Justice Department then asked the 11 judges on the full appellate court to review the ruling. The full court turned down that request Monday on a 7-4 vote without explanation. Voting in favor of review were Judges George MacKinnon, Roger Robb, Malcolm Wilkey and Robert Bork.

The government contends Hinckley's statements immediately following his arrest are essential to show he was sane and rational.

In the hours after Reagan was shot in the left lung, Hinckley was questioned about his background and family history, even though he asked to see a lawyer. The information included statements about his seemingly pointless travels around the country and a "girlfriend" — whom Hinckley identified as actress Jodie Foster.

Prosecutors believe that Hinckley may have been motivated to shoot Reagan out of a desire to impress Miss Foster, who said she had never met the suspect.

Miss Foster appeared last week at a closed-door court proceeding in Washington to answer question about various pieces of evidence in the case.

Mt. St. Helens burps, rumbles, hints at more eruptions

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens shot out a gaseous eruption for the third time in less than 24 hours Monday.

At the same time, it was emitting ominous signals indicating lava and gas were churning below the volcano's jagged crater.

The latest eruption at 6:20 p.m. MST was described as a "small gas emission" that sent up a cloud of steam with a small amount of ash to an elevation of about 23,000 feet — about 13,000 feet above the crater.

"The plume is drifting toward the northwest on a line to Chehalis (Wash.)," said Larry Voshall of the Washington state Department of Emergency Services.

"A flash flood watch continues in effect near the volcano within a radius of 15 miles and along the North Fork of the Toutle River," he said. "There is no indication that mudflows have occurred. However, seismic activity continues at this time and mudflows are a possibility if an explosive type of eruption were to occur."

Earlier, the volcano shot two towering plumes of steam and ash four and five miles high before settling into a pattern indicating the movement of lava or gas, or both, deep inside the mountain.

"It means an eruption is quite likely at any point," spokesman A.B. Adams of the University of Washington geophysics program said, referring to the seismic readings.

Seismologists were seeing an unusual pattern of harmonic tremors which are believed to reflect the movement of liquid or gas under pressure, as in water pumped through a pipe.

Christina Boyko of the geophysics program said the harmonic tremors recorded Monday "are the strongest we've seen ever for this length of time."

In the past, she said, the tremors would run for a few hours and cease but "in this case the high level of activity hasn't changed one way or another since early this morning."

But she said scientists weren't making any forecasts of what kind of eruption, if any, the unusual pattern of tremors may foretell.

Adams said seismologists regarded the latest steam eruptions as a "small event" and a continuation of the eruptive period that began March 19 with the volcano's first explosive eruption in 17 months.

The volcano seemed to be going back into a quiet phase, but a sudden series of earthquakes Sunday night gave little more than an hour's warning of the plume that rocketed to about 28,000 feet just before 10 p.m. MST.

The second large pulse came at 11:33 p.m. Sunday, sending up a cloud that topped 32,000 feet.

Magic Valley residents suspect wind brings in ash

No one is sure, but The Times-News has received calls from several persons who have found a light coat of milky-colored, gritty ash covering their cars. A man living west of Jerome and a man living west of Twin Falls both reported their vehicles were dusted with what looked like ash.

Bill Galkin, a spokesman from the National Weather Service station in Kimberly, said no ash falls had been reported and no ash warnings for southern Idaho had been issued. But he said it was "possible" ash may have drifted this far south.

No reports of ash falling have been made to the environmental department of the South Central District Health Department. And department staff members note that many people now are burning ditch banks.

Today's briefing

Court refuses challenge

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court refused Monday to hear a Kootenai County group's suit against the legislative reapportionment plan approved by the state Legislature and Gov. John Evans last month.

In its three-paragraph dismissal order, the high court did not explain why it would not hear the litigation, which was filed by a Kootenai County couple and a member of the Coeur d'Alene Indian Tribe last week.

William and Gretchen Hellar and Bingo Si John filed the suit on the grounds that the 35-district reapportionment plan violated requirements of the Idaho Constitution by splitting counties between districts.

The trio also charged that incumbents in some northern Idaho districts gerrymandered district boundaries to protect themselves in upcoming elections.

The suit contended the state Constitution prohibits the splitting of a county between two or more legislative districts, but Attorney General David Leroy — representing the state against the lawsuit — says the U.S. Supreme Court mandates on reapportionment apparently supersede the state guidelines.

Naval court acquits officer

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Capt. Lee B. Cargill, the former executive officer of the carrier USS Ranger, Monday was acquitted of dereliction of duty and orders violations in the death of a Michigan seaman last April.

The five-officer jury, made up of four captains and one admiral, deliberated for a little more than three hours before delivering the verdict in a hushed courtroom.

Cargill, 42, Gridley, Ill., was charged with allowing the abuse of prisoners in the carrier's Correctional Custody Unit while the ship was in Subic Bay, The Philippines.

Shuttle ready for trip home

WHITE SANDS, N.M. (UPI) — A special 80-foot derrick hoisted the Columbia atop a Boeing 747 jet Monday, readying the 100-ton orbiter for its return flight to Cape Canaveral, Fla., only about 10 weeks away from its next mission June 27.

Buck Gay, Northrup Strip operations manager, said the 747 carrying the Columbia was scheduled to depart today at 7 a.m. MST. The return flight had been originally been scheduled Wednesday after its landing last Tuesday.

Bunker Hill buyer backs out

WALLACE (UPI) — Australian businessman Martin Baral said Monday he has abandoned his efforts to purchase the Bunker Hill Co. mining and refining complex in Kellogg.

Baral had signed a letter of understanding with the United Steelworkers of America, the union which represents the majority of Bunker Hill's 1,700 hourly wage employees. The preliminary agreement between the union and Baral's company, Expo Oil N.L., was considered a major step toward cementing a deal to buy the company.

But Baral apparently could not attract other investors to the plan, which was intended to resume full operations of the plant.

Mining proposal to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan sent Congress Monday a report calling for opening vast areas of protected public lands to mineral development to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign sources for minerals essential to national defense.

"The United States must implement materials and minerals policy programs to ensure that America's capacity to field and sustain fighting forces in the event of war or national emergency is not curtailed by a shortage of critical raw materials," says the National Materials and Minerals Program Plan.

Arts patrons to save park

The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — Arts patrons and such former performers as Beverly Sills and President Reagan have vowed that the summer season of the Wolf Trap Farm Park would be salvaged from the ashes of a three-alarm fire.

The fire, which broke out late Sunday and continued to burn sporadically Monday, destroyed the partially enclosed stage and concert hall of Wolf Trap.

Mexican volcano lets loose

VILLAHERMOSA, Tabasco (UPI) — Mexico's Chichon Volcano erupted Monday for the seventh time in a week, blasting a new layer of ash over an area already devastated by $55 million in agricultural losses and more than 100 dead, officials said.

Alfredo Gordillo, a spokesman for the Tabasco state government, said Chichon belched out smoke and ash in a brief eruption, much less serious than others that covered 9,600 square miles with ash as deep as two feet.

Today's weather

Monday was fine but get set for another round

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Increasing winds today with a chance of showers. Increasing showers on Wednesday. Highs near 45. Lows near 30.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, Wood River valley:

Locally windy with increasing chance of snow showers through Wednesday. Highs 35 to 40. Lows in the teens.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Scattered showers today with snow level near 5,000 feet. Cooler Wednesday with lingering showers. Highs in the 40s both days. Lows 25 to 35. Showers developing tonight over Utah, changing to snow Wednesday as temperatures turn colder. Highs in the 50s today and near 40 Wednesday. Lows in the 30s.

Synopsis:

Monday may have given the Magic Valley a taste of improving conditions later this week.

A weak high pressure system produced generally clear skies and mild temperatures over southern Idaho, while a small storm brought periods of snow to the panhandle. Clouds began developing in the afternoon over the Magic Valley ahead of a front moving eastward across Oregon, with moisture likely tonight.

However, a northerly flow of air aloft should make later, drier, cooler and more stable conditions by midweek across Idaho.

Breezes were brisk across southern Idaho Monday, with velocities of 10 to 20 mph common. Gusts at Boise topped 25 mph.

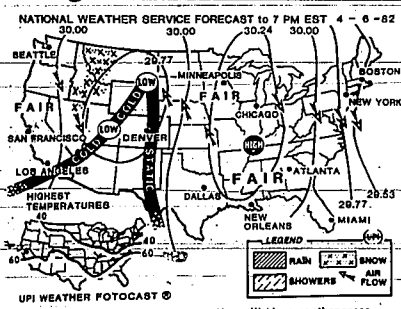

Afternoon temperatures were in the 50s over much of the state with the warmest 54 at Hagerman and at Payette. Stanley's 15 degrees below zero was the coldest Monday morning low.

In Twin Falls, the pollen count was 4 per cubic meter of air.

Showers, winds and cool temperatures will continue to delay field preparation, planting and fertilizing through Wednesday. Limited shower activity later in the week should allow some drying of fields. Spraying conditions will be fair to poor today. Minimum soil temperature today should be 38 degrees and the maximum 40.

The extended forecast for the Magic Valley calls for continued cool through Saturday with a chance of snow showers Thursday, dry Friday and an increasing chance of rain or snow showers Saturday. Highs will be from 45 to 55 with lows 25 to 35.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the warmest temperature was 97 at Laredo, Texas and the coldest was 15 below zero at Tower, Minn.

'Thunder snows' sweep over wide area as winter returns

By United Press International

Winter returned with a vengeance to the northern half of the nation Monday.

It packed "thunder snows" up to 10 inches deep and dropped temperatures to teeth-chattering lows from the Rockies to the Mid-Atlantic states.

At least 63 people have died and hundreds have been injured in the latest round of storms.

"Old Man Winter is just trying to remind us he's alive and kicking," Brad Doyle of the National Weather Service in Rochester, N.Y., said.

Dry conditions and sweeping winds fed about 200 brush fires in North Carolina and Virginia during the weekend, causing about $6 million in damages to the devastated Wolf Trap Performing Arts center in suburban Washington, D.C.

A victim from last week's massive Alpine Meadows ski resort avalanches in Squaw Valley, Calif., was miraculously found alive by rescue teams using a break in the weather to resume their search. Seven people were killed and one was still missing.

Avalanche hazards forced about 400 people to leave their homes in portions of Squaw Valley. Interstate 80, a key link between California and Nevada, was reopened to traffic after being closed by the blizzard for several days.

Near blizzard conditions whipped blinding snows through Chicago, knocking out a train yard switch essential to southbound commuter service for more than an hour. The evening rush hour became a nightmare as commuters who drove into the city because of an early morning railroad strike slowly crept home on slick roads.

More than 8 inches had fallen by mid-evening, and nearly a foot of snow was expected in southeastern parts of the city. Crete, Ill., reported 9½ inches. Blustery 40 mph winds made travel nearly impossible.

Nearly 7 inches of snow smothered Milwaukee and 45 mph gusts piled up drifts 4 feet deep.

More than 6 inches of snow fell in six hours in Des Moines, Iowa, where forecasters were calling for at least 8 inches. Heavy snowfall lowered visibility to near zero in Ottumwa, Iowa, where 4 inches was measured.

Eerie thunderstorms accompanied the furious snows. "Thunder snow is real common in the mountains," forecaster Mike O'Brien said. "But it's almost always too warm for that around here."

Rain and thunderstorms pounded western Kentucky with golf-ball size hail in Bardwell and Cadiz.

Nearly 2 inches of rain fell at Fort Benning, Ga. More than an inch was measured at Montgomery, Ala.

A winter storm warning was posted for north central Illinois, northern Indiana and west central Ohio through the night. A winter storm watch was issued for much of the mid-Atlantic coast and central Appalachians through today. Up to 4 inches of snow was expected in some areas.

Travelers advisories stretched from South Dakota to northern West Virginia and southwestern Pennsylvania.

More than 70 tornadoes were spawned during the weekend from Texas to the Mississippi Valley into the Tennessee and Ohio valleys.

Arkansas and Texas were the hardest hit, reporting 13 and 10 deaths respectively. California reported seven deaths; Michigan five; Colorado, Wisconsin and Iowa four; Mississippi three, and two weather-related fatalities each were reported in Washington, Pennsylvania, Missouri, New York and Kansas.

Falklands—

tached from the Mediterranean, and eventually will reach a strength of nearly 40 ships.

The armada is equipped with the latest guided missile weapons, helicopters and a landing force of more than 1,000 Royal Marines.

Queen Elizabeth II Monday authorized the requisition of any ships needed to deal with the Falklands crisis.

The 8,000-mile voyage to the Falklands is expected to take up to three weeks.

That is the time apparently available for any political settlement, because Nott — who is under continuing parliamentary fire over his weak performance in Saturday's debate on the invasion — said Sunday that Britain is prepared to fight Argentina, if necessary, to recapture the Falklands.

Pym has been increasingly mentioned as a possible successor to Thatcher as Tory party leader and prime minister if she falters. The fact that she has called on him for what is now the most sensitive position in the Cabinet beside her own can only boost his political stock.

Lord Carrington's determination to accept responsibility for the debacle against Thatcher's vigorous effort to dissuade him so the government would remain united in the crisis was a massive blow to her government and makes her personal position less secure.

Monday, she reiterated her determination that Britain would regain sovereignty over the islands, and that the people want to be British. She said the Royal Navy fleet now heading south is one of the largest ever assembled, and that it is on a war footing.

The Tory back-benchers, who have rallied a bit to Nott's support because he was acting under Foreign Office orders, regard the loss of the Falklands as an unforgivable blunder for which someone must pay.

Governor lets moratorium on inverted rates take effect

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans Monday allowed to become law without his signature a bill that outlaws inverted residential electric rates for two years.

From July 1, 1982 through July 1, 1984, Idaho utilities will be prohibited from using inverted rates for residential electric service. Washington Water Power Co., which operates in northern Idaho, is exempt from the moratorium because it favors inverted rates.

The bill grew out of protests by owners of all-electric residences in southern Idaho that the inverted rate schedule put into effect on Idaho Power Co.'s system by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission was discriminatory.

In a five-page explanation of his action, Evans asked the PUC to draft a report outlining alternative conservation measures "while addressing the questions of equity within and among rate classes."

The chief executive expressed reluctance about letting the measure become law.

"Thanks to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, we have been making the transition to a new mix of energy quite successfully," he wrote. "I consider House Bill 655 a setback from the current policies — perhaps an unavoidable one — but one that will not last if we learn the lesson it contains."

Evans suggested that the severity of protests since the Idaho Power inverted rate schedule went into effect last fall was a result of an unusually harsh winter, which drove up heating bills, and three Idaho Power rate increases since "our last real winter, 1978-79."

"I am satisfied that to thousands of ratepayers, rate inversion came to represent the same thing as rate increase — but that was not, and is not, the case," Evans said. "The residential class is required to produce the same amount of revenue to the utility, whatever the rate design. The question was, and is: How much, by whom, and when?"

Van Engelen pursues auditor job

BOISE — Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, launched his campaign to unseat six-term incumbent state Auditor Joe Williams with a press conference Monday in Boise.

Announcing plans for an "aggressive campaign," Van Engelen acknowledged it will be tough for him to defeat the veteran Democrat in the November election. No primary races are expected for the auditor's position.

"Joe is a well-liked man," he said. "He hasn't done anything really wrong, so it will be a very tough campaign."

The three-term senator from District 26 says the auditor's office needs to be expanded to provide more information to the Legislative Fiscal Office and to the Legislature. He said he expects strong voter support from the Magic Valley area, which repeatedly has elected him to the Senate, and from conservatives in eastern Idaho.

"What I want to accomplish now is to get the facts out concerning what my ideas are for the state auditor's office."

Van Engelen said he had postponed any speaking tours until after the Legislature adjourned two weeks ago. Williams has been speaking to civic groups around the state since his re-election announcement early this year.

Evans opens bid for school post

BOISE (UPI) — Citing the need for strong local leadership as Idaho takes control of many education programs previously funded by the federal government, Jerry L. Evans announced his candidacy Monday for a second term as state superintendent of public instruction.

Evans said the next three or four years will be critical to the state school system because the U.S. Department of Education has decided to withdraw from many programs, leaving local government with the responsibility for either terminating the projects or finding money to continue them.

The 50-year-old administrator said effective leadership is needed as Idaho enters that transitional period, adding his four years as superintendent has taught him the skills necessary to help the state's school system cope with the New Federalism.

He said several key accomplishments were made during his first term, including successful efforts to:

•Ensure that legislative implementation of the 1 percent property tax initiative protected schools from a potential loss of more than $100 million.

•Gain passage of a new formula for distributing the state's foundation programs to provide greater equity for both taxpayers and students.

•Consolidate all school election laws into one section of the Idaho Code.

•Establish a Commission on Excellence to improve education across the state.

•Guarantee maximum returns on school lands and keep the public school endowment fund inviolate as a member of the Idaho Land Board.

Dye stayed on bills, witness says at trial

BOISE (UPI) — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce and a woman accused of teaching him to rob banks washed money at a North Idaho laundromat in an attempt to rid the cash of dye spewed on it during a bank heist, a witness testified Monday.

Mark Chavez, 15, told U.S. District Court jurors he stood lookout at the door of the Sandpoint laundromat while Gloria Ann White and Boyce ran several rolls of bills through a washer and dryer.

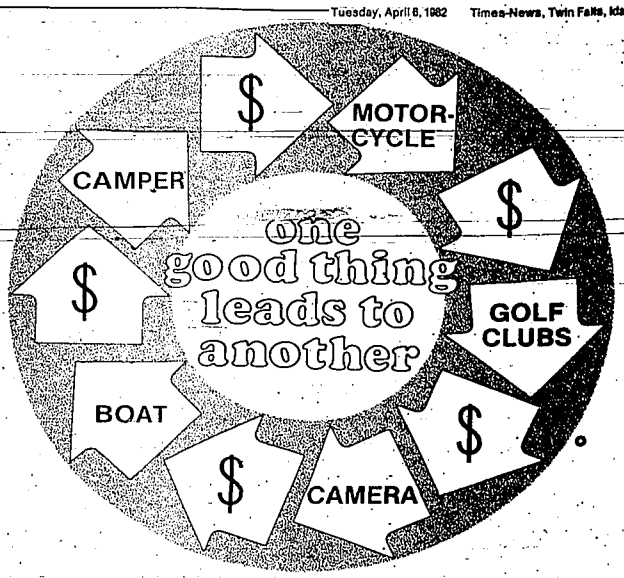

The youth, who lived with Mrs. White as a foster child, said laundering didn't remove the bank's dye from the cash — so the three went to a home and burned the money.

"Gloria told me Chris Boyce was a spy," Chavez told the jury in the eighth day of testimony. "She said he was relaying false information to Russia and she told me not to tell anybody or that he lived there."

The man who led federal agents to recapture Boyce at a drive-in last summer also testified Monday that Mrs. White provided food and supplies to the convicted spy during his 19-month flight from authorities.

But Joseph Pratt told U.S. District Court jurors he had "no reason to believe" the woman was involved in an 11-month bank-robbery spree that already prompted Boyce's guilty plea last week.

Pratt — one of three brothers granted immunity and paid money for their testimony — said he led federal agents to recapture the man convicted of selling U.S. satellite secrets to the Russians in Port Angeles, Wash., last August out of "a little patriotism and for my family."

Political courage is alive and well

With an election just around the corner, Gov. John Evans did the wise thing — politically — Monday when he sidestepped a potential "land mine."

The governor allowed to become law without his signature a bill that will ban for two years, starting July 1, inverted rates for the residential use of electricity.

This bill has been a hot potato since the Idaho Public Utilities Commission first ordered Idaho Power to impose an inverted rate schedule on its residential customers last fall. Idaho Power has fought the ruling tooth and nail — all the way to state Supreme Court — and this year, the Legislature got into the act when it passed the moratorium on inverted rates in March.

A lot of representatives and senators got a chance to make political hay on the issue. Now, they can say they have responded to constituent complaints; they can claim they have defended the people from an unelected bureaucracy — the PUC.

Inverted rates are designed to promote — and force — conservation. In Idaho, the purpose also was to delay the need to build more coal-fired power plants, which are considerably more costly than hydroelectric power.

Under inverted rates, the per-unit cost of power increases as more power is used by residential customers. While inverted rates meant lower bills for many customers, the owners of all-electric homes were hit with substantial increases. This winter's harsh weather made those bills even worse, and the outcry from those homeowners was heard in Boise.

So Evans was left with a tough decision. If he vetoed the bill, he risked considerable political damage. All of the homeowners upset with inverted rates would have been angry. And his stand would have been an irresistible target for his Republican opponent in November.

But if he signed the bill, it would have been too obvious that the governor had caved in to political pressure, that he had abandoned the PUC commissioners, the majority of whom he has appointed.

So he did the smart thing: He refrained from action.

Now, when electric rates increase for an estimated 70 percent of Idaho Power's customers, the governor can smile and blame the Republicans. And a few years down the line when the need for more power plants OR conservation again becomes apparent and pressing, the governor can smile and blame the Republicans.

And they say our leaders are lacking in political courage.

Tinker's Dam names ambassador to China!

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Several town meetings in New England have gone on record as favoring a freeze on nuclear-weapon deployment. And a town in Georgia has adopted an ordinance requiring citizens to own guns.

Somehow, I don't think this is exactly what President Reagan had in mind in advocating New Federalism.

But on the other hand, why not?

If states and communities are going to administer federal social programs, why not saddle them with foreign policy and let 'hem take over other national issues as well?

Here are some of the local actions we might be seeing:

Buttermilk Falls, Wis. — City Council voted today to open negotiations with Cuba, looking toward a settlement of the Central American crisis. "We hope to convince Fidel Castro that it would be in Cuba's interest to break off relations with the Soviet Union and to stop supplying arms and military advisers to rebel forces in El Salvador," Mayor Nathan Windfinger said.

South Succotash, Ala. — The Bagatelle County Commission has approved a plan backing the sale of arms to Syria.

"If the federal government won't let the Syrians buy the latest military aircraft, we will sell them some shotguns from the Sheriff Department's arsenal," said county manager Endicott Torporbolt.

Tinker's Dam, Nev. — The town council tonight confirmed the appointment of Mayor Deadwright as this city's ambassador to China.

Fort Snowtread, Colo. — The town council here has passed an ordinance requiring all pregnant women to have abortions.

"The old theory that population growth provides a larger tax base has been thoroughly discredited," said Mayor Amos Spadecaller. "All the baby boom has gotten us is a bigger deficit."

Broken Treaty, Okla. — The school board announced tonight it has completed arrangments for busing students from one all-white school to another.

"Despite the fact that no minorities are involved, the board feels it is a form of discrimination to require students to attend schools in their own neighborhoods," Superintendent Primbley Bunglewoof explained.

"Besides that, riding across town in a school bus is unreduction in itself."

Sump City, N.J. — At a town meeting tonight, residents of this community approved plans to convert a vacant lot across the street from the Courthouse into a nuclear dumping ground.

"The word we get is that nuclear power plants across the country are having trouble finding places to dump radioactive waste material," said municipal spokesman Banebridge Fitzkelnurd.

"If the price is right, they can dump on us."

Upper Wrought, Pa. — The council of aldermen voted today to prohibit the sale of cigarettes that carry health warnings on the packages.

Officials know the 'score' in Enchilada

Flounder rushed into Bass's office at the State Department and cried, "The secretary wants a slide presentation on the elections in Enchilada to show to the American people."

"I anticipated that," Bass said. "I've been putting one together. Sit down.

"This is the Garcia family, which lives in Miami and which financed the Liberal Peasant Assassination Party of Miguel Tortilla."

"Who is Tortilla?"

"He is known as 'The Hammer' because his people like to beat on opposition politicians with hammers. In 1971, we called him Enchilada's 'Criminal of the Year.' But he got 25 percent of the vote."

"Wow, it's going to be hard for us to support him."

"Not necessarily. We found a slide of Tortilla giving blood to the Red Cross. Next."

"That looks like Beverly Hills."

"It is. The Gomez family, which owns all the vanilla plantations in Enchilada, resides there."

"Who takes care of their affairs back home?"

"The Sambico Death Squads, lead by Heraldo Destino. The Sambicos claim to have wiped out 30 villages in the Ole Mountains. They're policemen by day and work for the Gomez family at night. Destino ran on the National Unity and Freedom Party under the political slogan 'Land Reform Sucks.' He got 18 percent of the vote."

"Can we deal with him?"

"We're going to have to because he's formed a coalition with Tortilla. Next slide."

"I don't recognize that fellow."

"That is the 'Gorilla of Cuevas' who represents the United Papillon Front, a group that splintered off from Destino because the National Unity and Freedom Party gave up the use of machetes to frighten the Indians during the election.

"His money comes from the Diego family, which lives in Palm Springs. He got 20 percent of the vote. He's willing to form a government with Destino and Tortilla, provided they go back to using machetes against the Indians."

"How do we explain him to the American people?"

"As an Enchilada freedom fighter who has read every book on Thomas Jefferson. Here is that crumb Jiminez Tipperillo, the loser we supported in the elections. Even with CIA help and a $50 million military slush fund, he couldn't pull it off."

"We're going to have to back away from him."

"We have already. We put out the word he sleeps with a picture of Fidel Castro under his pillow."

"What are the rest of the slides?"

"Photos of the Enchilada Marxist guerrillas raping and pillaging the country."

"How did we get them?"

"We took them in Uganda, but who the hell is going to know the difference?"

"It looks like a pretty convincing slide show to me. Of course, if we continue our military aid, the president is going to have to certify that the new government believes in human rights."

"That's no problem. I spoke to Tortilla on the phone this morning, and he assured me that anyone who opposes the new government's human-rights policy will be shot in the knees."

Nuclear-bomb workers forced to make moral choice

BOSTON — On an average working day in the flat ranch country outside of Amarillo, Texas, about 2,400 people travel over a two-lane highway to the huge plant where they work. There is nothing unusual about these commuters, nothing unusual about this scene, except for one thing: These workers build nuclear bombs for a living.

Since the 1950s, this one Pantex plant in the Texas Panhandle has assembled all the nuclear bombs in our arsenal of terror, with little more fanfare than if they'd been building refrigerators. For nearly three decades, the rest of the world hardly has thought about the human beings who put together these lethal weapons.

But now, as we shake off the psychic numbness toward nuclear bombs, as our anxiety about extinction is catalyzed into intense debate, Amarillo has become a crucible for concern. If we are to produce more bombs, they, literally, will be produced in Amarillo; if we are to stop, they, literally, will stop in Amarillo.

If the argument about nuclear bombs is to change from a defense issue for experts to a moral issue for all of us, that transition, too, may take place with a very personal intensity in Amarillo.

Indeed, the process already has begun.

Last summer, Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen raised tempers and consciousness in his city when the 60-year-old Texan wrote to his diocese, asking that "individuals involved in the production and stockpiling of nuclear bombs to consider what they are doing, to resign from such activities and to seek employment in peaceful pursuits."

The flap that followed this call to lay down arms-making was predictable.

Matthiesen announced in February that the Catholic Family Services agency would offer counseling for Pantex workers. On March 11, The United Way, under pressure from the business community, dropped funding for the Family Services. Today, a controversy rages in the town that numbers bombs as its biggest business.

In a simple, clear message, the bishop asked the workers to confront the sea of change in our national thinking about nuclear bombs. Bombs that were justified by many as deterrents are seen increasingly as suicidal. A job that once was considered patriotic now is perhaps unconscionable, even immoral.

The word "immoral" is not one that trips easily off our tongues in this case, nor was the bishop's call read lightly. Few of us are ever comfortable grading our neighbors' jobs on any sliding scale of ethics. We have to leave room for different otions about right and wrong. We have to leave room for different obligations and options.

It is particularly hard to put the onus of nuclear morality on workers. These are people who can only make policy with their feet, who can only choose to do the job or loose it.

"Those of us who have some options have more luxury to make ethical judgments," says Roger Kasperson, who deals with ethical questions of the workplace at Clark University.

Sissela Bok, who teaches ethics at Harvard Medical School, says, simply, "It's very easy to run someone into an unemployed person."

On the other hand, both agree that we all are obliged to consider the ethics of our work. Since Nuremberg, there is no defense in "just following orders," no moral immunity in "not knowing." We must be, as Bok puts it, "concerned with the moral questions of what it is you are doing."

Names of those who built the first atomic bomb already can be found listed in the anti-nuclear movement: George Kistiakowsky and Philip Morrison, among others. Matthiesen would like to add the names of some lesser-known builders.

"I think it is an heroic act (to resign)," said the bishop in a phone interview. He doesn't expect many heroes, and he doesn't expect to close down the plant.

"For every workers who quits, I know there will be a dozen applying."

But he is after "raising awareness and questioning decisions." This he has done.

No one can work at Pantex any longer without confronting the reality that his or her product is overkill. No one can live in Amarillo without being conscious of this debate, engaging the issue.

The arms-builders of Amarillo are at the very bottom of a chain of decisions about nuclear bombs. We know that. It's a chain that binds voters and politicians, scientists and the military. There isn't a soul in the country entirely disconnected.

What has begun in that community affects us all. We are all being called on now to judge the morality of our decisions and actions, to be accountable by Matthiesen's single standard: "the very future of human life."

Builders boo Reagan talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan got a cold welcome Monday from recession-weary construction workers.

He ignored their boos and sought to rally them with forecasts of future prosperity and a slap at the Kremlin.

Reagan was greeted with a chorus of boos after he arrived with a band playing "Hail to the Chief" to speak to the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO — the same group he addressed the day he was shot, March 30, 1981.

"Thank you all for your warm welcome," he said sardonically.

His reception, a mixture of applause and hostility, was spawned by 9 percent unemployment, which the administration acknowledged Monday may keep rising in the months ahead despite projected economic recovery.

It was the coolest reception from an audience Reagan has received as president. There was audible conversation continuing among those present during his remarks, and the applause that greeted the conclusion of his address ended before Reagan had even left the stage.

The president smiled through the boos that erupted as he entered the Washington Hilton ballroom and joked about the shooting that occurred outside the same hotel last year.

"If it's all the same to you," he quipped, "I think I'll slip out that back door after my speech."

Reagan praised the labor movement, promised an "open door" to his office for union leaders, and decried the absence of reportage about "good agreements" reached every year between management and workers.

He got his biggest applause when he said he will not try to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires that construction workers on federally funded projects be paid at least the "prevailing wage" for similar work in a given locality. The law enjoys strong support from unions.

"There is good reason to believe the recession is bottoming out," the president said, calling on his audience to stay with his program at this juncture. To abandon it now, he said, would only compound the problems.

He said victory over inflation is near and that the tax cuts and spending reductions he advocates will soon fuel a recovery. He said there can be no retreat on the fundamental principles of his plan: a defense buildup, tax relief and a reduction in "the bankrupt growth of federal spending."

No limit on promises, Supreme Court rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court unanimously declared Monday that political candidates can promise voters almost anything.

The 9-0 ruling struck down a Kentucky law that barred candidates from promising to cut their salaries if elected.

"The free exchange of ideas provides special vitality to the process traditionally at the heart of American constitutional democracy — the political campaign," said Justice William Brennan, writing for the court.

Brennan noted that states can prohibit candidates from "corrupting agreements and solicitations" — such as offering payments in return for votes.

But he added, "A candidate's promise to confer some ultimate benefit on the voter . . . or member of the general public does not lay beyond the of pale First Amendment protection."

The decision was a victory for Republican Carl W. Brown, who challenged a state appeals court ruling that had nullified an election in which he won a seat on the Jefferson County (Louisville) Commission. Brown defeated Democrat Earl J. Hartlage in 1979.

Brown is currently a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the district that includes Louisville and its suburbs.

The court battle started when Hartlage sued after losing the county commission race. He claimed Brown illegally pledged to serve for $3,000 less than annual salary.

O'Connor opinions lead court's law, order rulings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Sandra Day O'Connor led the Supreme Court Monday in two law-and-order rulings that significantly restrict the rights of criminals to challenge their convictions after they are behind prison bars.

Condemning the "brutality" of a murderer in one case, Mrs. O'Connor wrote a majority opinion that stressed a felon eventually must accept his conviction as final, even though there may have been minor errors at his trial.

The 6-3 ruling was a victory for federal prosecutors, who argued there must be a balance between a criminal's right to appeal his conviction and society's need for "finality in criminal cases."

Mrs. O'Connor, the first woman to sit on the Supreme Court, also wrote the court's 7-2 decision in another criminal case, striking down a ruling that could have led to the reversal of scores of felony convictions in Ohio.

In that opinion, the court also limited a state criminal's freedom to raise certain claims in federal court, saying that unlimited appeals of convictions "frequently cost society the right to punish admitted offenders."

The case at issue involved a 1963 murder.

Army private 6th to die on maneuver

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (UPI) — An Army private participating in Operation Gallant Eagle 82 died in a truck accident, raising to six the number of soldiers killed since field exercises began last week, officials said Monday.

Pvt. Donald Evans, stationed at Fort Carson, Colo., died Sunday after his vehicle rolled over during a turn, a spokesman said.

Four paratroopers died last Tuesday during a massive airdrop that marked the beginning of week-long combat exercises in the Mojave Desert by the multi-service Rapid Deployment Force. A fifth paratrooper died Thursday of head injuries suffered in the jump.

Actor Oates died from heart attack

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An autopsy concluded Monday that veteran actor Warren Oates, who played a series of shiftless, sleazy characters in such movies as "In the Heat of the Night" and "The Wild Bunch," died of a heart attack.

Oates was found unconscious Saturday by his wife, Judy, shortly after retiring for a nap. Paramedics pronounced the actor dead after trying unsuccessfully to revive him.

"It was a coronary death due to natural causes," Bill Gold said.

Germans make way to West

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — Four East Germans made daring weekend escapes to the West.

One swam a river and two others tunneled by hand under a metal fence in broad daylight, West German officials said.

The Bavarian Interior Ministry said two of the men, aged 38 and 21, walked across a mined strip of land Sunday and used their hands to dig their way under a 10-foot-high metal barrier topped with barbed wire.

In Kassel, in the central German state of Hesse, border authorities said one 18-year-old swam the River Werra at a point 60 yards wide in Eschwege, 31 miles east of Kassel early Sunday.

The fourth escapee was a 17-year-old schoolboy who also fled to the state of Hesse, but authorities refused to describe how he succeeded.

The two men who escaped to Bavaria apparently went undetected by East German border guards, stationed in watch towers at regular intervals along the 861-mile border that divides East and West Germany.

The ministry said the men arrived in West Germany unharmed but gave no further details on the escape to protect the men's relatives still in East Germany.

The 18-year-old who swam the river to Hesse first scaled several barbed wire fences, one almost 11 feet high, at a point where there are no booby traps along the border, a spokesman said. He was not identified.

Rightists push for coalition

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Rightist political leader Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson Monday vowed the assassination of a newly elected member of the constitutent assembly would not delay the formation of an extreme right coalition.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, in an open letter published Monday, expressed his admiration for the Salvadoran people who braved guerrilla threats to go to the polls, but urged the rightists to be "conciliatory."

"The election results are as much a defeat for the guerrillas as they are a political statement," said the letter published in the San Salvador newspaper Prensa Grafica.

The body of David Joaquin Quinteros lay in state all Sunday night in the heavily guarded headquarters of the extreme rightist Nationalist Republican Alliance (ARENA) party.

Quinteros was shot three times and left to die in a garbage dump Saturday in the first political assassination of a member of El Salvador's constituent assembly elected March 28.

ARENA leader D'Aubuisson, clearly shaken by the murder, said the nation's right-wing parties will not let Quinteros' death stop them from forming a coalition to govern the politically troubled nation.

Five right-wing parties that ran in the elections have announced plans for a "government of national unity." Four of the parties won a total of 36 seats in the constitutent assembly elections, a ruling majorty in the 60-seat body.

Although the rightists have said the U.S.-backed ruling Christian Democrats — with 24 seats — could be included in the new government, they have made it clear Junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte would play no role.

Soviets say Brezhnev on his winter vacation

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Leonid Brezhnev, who reportedly suffered a possible stroke, will be out of sight for nearly another month, Soviet sources said Monday.

But the Kremlin's first official comment said he was vacationing.

"Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev is currently taking his routine winter vacation," a Soviet foreign ministry statement said, denying a Newsweek report that Brezhnev had suffered a serious stroke and would resign next month.

"This does not correspond with the facts," the statement said. An official spokesman refused to answer any further questions on Brezhnev's health.

The sources expressed doubt the 75-year-old Communist party chief would appear in public before May Day, when tradition calls for him to stand atop Lenin's tomb to view a parade of Soviet workers, Soviet sources said.

Diplomats said he would normally be expected to attend a celebration of Lenin's birthday April 21. Brezhnev was at last year's ceremony but missed the event in 1980, and the sources said he would definitely not attend this year.

One Soviet source said Monday Brezhnev was at a rest home on the outskirts of the capital. He was last seen March 25 when he returned from Tashkent to Moscow.

The president's ailment was reportedly diagnosed by Soviet physicians as either a mild stroke or a "spasm" — a pre-stroke inflammation of the cerebral blood vessels. No information on his symptoms was available.

The government and party leader was reported earlier to be under treatment at a special hospital near the Kremlin for high-ranking Communist officials.

Israel pledges vengeance

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel Monday buried Ya'acov Barsimontov, its diplomat slain in Paris, blaming the PLO and vowing to attack Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon without "cessation" to avenge his murder.

"The bullets which hit our brother Ya'acov were aimed at the heart of the people of Israel, at the heart of the State of Israel and were fired at the heart of each of us," Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said at the funeral.

In the Golan Heights, Israel ended a seven-week military blockade of Druse villages as hundreds of Arab youths gathered in the town square of Majdel Shams, shouting slogans against the Dec. 14 annexation of the region.

Britain offers Ulster home rule plan

LONDON (UPI) — Britain unveiled a plan Monday to restore limited home rule to Northern Ireland in new effort to end the "political sterility" of nearly eight years of direct rule by London over the strife-torn province.

The plan, presented to parliament by Northern Ireland Minister James Prior, provides for a 78-member assembly that would replace direct rule from London.

But prospects of success were not highly rated. Since the dissolution of Northern Ireland's parliament or Stormont in 1972, all similar plans have collapsed because of the refusal of Protestant politicians to share power with the Roman Catholic minority.

Hearing Loss is not a sign of Old Age

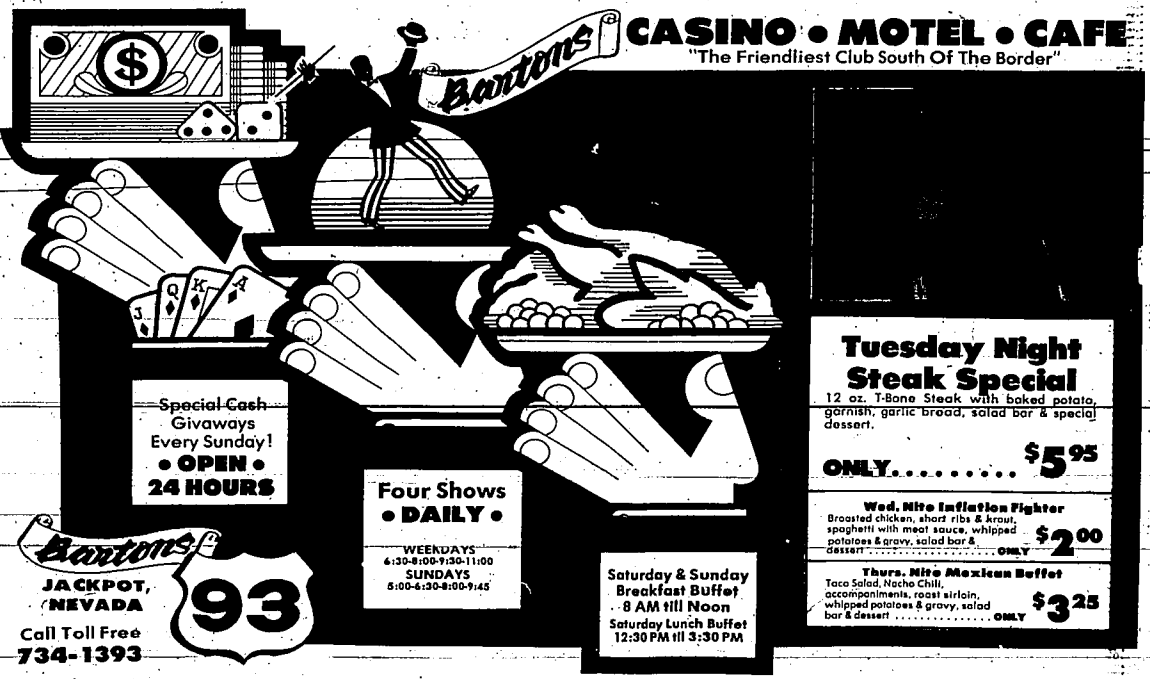

Twin Falls - Electronic hearing tests will be given at the Beltone Hearing Aid Service office Monday & Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Factory-trained Hearing Aid Specialists will be at our office at 239 Main Ave. W, to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine if his loss is one which may be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained, and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out whether the latest methods of hearing correction can help them hear better.

The free hearing tests will be given Monday, April 15, and Tuesday, April 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at 239 Main Ave. W. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call 733-0916 and arrange for an appointment at another time. IN-home testing is also available.

Council tables day-care vote for two weeks

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A church that wants to operate a day-care center — and the neighbors who oppose the enterprise — can expect a Twin Falls City Council decision on the matter in two weeks.

At a public hearing Monday, council accepted testimony on the Christian Center of Magic Valley's proposed center, but it did not reach a decision concerning the church's city permit.

In February, the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission granted a permit allowing a day-care center at the church, located at 191 Morrison St., which is in a residential area. Some of the residents of the adjacent Rock Garden Condominiums protested, claiming a day-care center could disrupt the neighborhood.

At a work session before Monday's hearing, Mayor Chris Talkington suggested taking the testimony under advisement, so council could reach a considered decision. His suggestion came a few hours after the Idaho Supreme Court heard arguments about a council decision last year on the zoning of a proposed shopping-mall site. The court testimony included statements about council's apparent disregard for proper procedures when handling zoning appeals.

"I think we all realize how doggone careful we have to be in making zoning decisions," Talkington said. "We've just been horribly informal in the past."

Monday's one-hour hearing on the day-care center drew testimony from church members and condominium owners. Opponents argued that the center will create noise and traffic problems, and generally runs against the wishes of condominium owners, who considered the Rock Garden's adults-only occupancy an incentive to buy.

Church spokesmen refuted the criticism and said there is a shortage of quality day-care centers in Twin Falls. They said the church existed long before the condominiums, and educational facilities have been a long-standing goal of the congregation.

Presently, a school at the church is operating in violation of the city's zoning ordinance. The violation may be addressed in the biannual review of the city's overall zoning ordinance later this month.

Church spokesmen said they want to start operating the day-care center this fall. The center is expected to serve a maximum of 30 preschool children from approximately 7 a.m. until about 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Bill Price, a condominium owner, urged council to consider withdrawing the church's permit, and he said that if the permit remains in effect, stipulations should be added. Those should include placing a limit on the number of children allowed at the center, he said.

A low phenylalanine diet will insure that Sandy Amen's PKU sons, Ryan, 3 months, and Justin, 4, will develop normally

Inherited disorder needs strict diet for children to stay normal

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Five years ago, the letters PKU meant nothing to Sandy and Randy Amen of Burley.

Now that abbreviation represents a condition that dominates their family life.

Four years ago, son Justin was born. The birth was normal, and the young couple was delighted with their first child. Justin had a routine blood test, and the couple went home ecstatic.

But a week or so later, the Amens were notified that the blood test revealed Justin had a rare, inherited disorder called phenylketonuria, know as PKU.

Babies suffering from PKU are unable to fully metabolize an amino acid called phenylalanine, which is found in many foods. As a result, this amino acid collects in the blood and affects the brain and nervous system.

As little as 30 years ago, PKU babies were destined to become severely retarded because of the accumulation of phenylalanine in their systems.

Yet there are no outward signs at birth of the disorder. A baby may have a strong musty smell or marked irritability, but often, the first outward sign is delayed physical abilities or growth. Routine blood tests, made at all hospital births, reveal the condition.

Sandy had never heard of PKU and was shocked to hear her son was affected. When it was explained to her, "I sat down and cried."

PKU literature given to her had pictures of teenage victims so grotesquely retarded and handicapped they seemed sub-human. The images left an indelible impression.

But although PKU cannot be cured, its effects can be controlled. So controlled in fact, that children like Justin can grow up to be perfectly normal individuals. The solution is diet — a strict one, developed in the last 20 years.

Justin was taken off mother's milk, which has high levels of phenylalanine, and fed a specialized formula called Lofenalac. Lofenalac is a powdered protein substance resembling dried milk, in which most of the phenylalanine has been removed.

Strangely enough, even PKU babies need a small amount of phenylalanine to grow normally. So, Sandy would mix a small amount of evaporated milk with the Lofenalac. Justin's blood was tested frequently to ensure he was getting the right amounts of the amino acid.

As he grew older, other foods were added, and his phenylalanine level checked biweekly. He eats virtually no meat, fish, cheese, eggs, nuts, peanut butter and white bread, all of which contain high levels of phenylalanine.

He can eat potatoes, rice, most vegetables and almost all fruits. Unlike diabetics, he has no problem metabolizing sugar, so he can eat hard candy and popsicles, and drink soda pop.

But he must avoid all dairy, protein and flour products. Regular cakes, cookies and ice cream are off-limits, although once in a while he gets a slice of bread. And he continues to drink Lofenalac, a substance that even his devoted parents cannot stomach.

City Council approves aircraft turn-around

TWIN FALLS — An aircraft turn-around area, costing $277,371, will be constructed at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

At a meeting Monday, Twin Falls City Council authorized the expenditure, which will be drawn from $774,607 in uncommitted money, which in turn is part of a $3.8 million federal grant awarded for airport improvements.

Engineering consultants say the uncommitted money is the result of uexpectedly low bids submitted by contractors wanting to acquire the airport work.

In action Monday, council agreed to sign a contract adjustment that will allow Bannock Paving Co. to construct the aircraft turn-around area. Bannock Paving Co. already is the major contractor in the overall airport improvement project.

The turn-around area is a safety feature that some airlines require before they will agree to use an airport. The turn-around also minimizes asphalt damage that results when jets turn on a runway.

Supreme Court hears arguments in city mall-zoning fight

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Arguments concerning the zoning dispute between Twin Falls City Council and a shopping-mall developer were heard Monday by the Idaho Supreme Court.

The dispute between City Council and Price Development Corp. of Salt Lake City was among the first of many cases that the Supreme Court will hear this week in Twin Falls.

At issue in the council-Price case is the zoning of seven-and-a-half acres of land next to the Green Acres housing subdivision. Last year, council denied Price's request that the parcel, zoned residential, be rezoned for commercial use to allow for the construction of a shopping mall.

The mall project requires the seven-and-a-half acres that are under the city's jurisdication, plus an abutting 30 acres that the county controls. The 30-acre area already carried a commercial designation when Price selected the property as a mall site.

Council's refusal to rezone the acreage was overturned by Judge Douglas Kramer of the Fifth District Court, and the city subsequently rezoned the property to commercial status. The Idaho Supreme Court then granted the city a stay of Kramer's decision, and council restored the residential zoning. The residential designation remains in effect pending further action by the Supreme Court.

The court's first step Monday was to hear arguments by lawyers Susan Swanberg, representing the city, and Robert Paine and Tom Nelson, representing Price and its partner, the Workman Family Partnership.

Presenting the opening argument, Swanberg admitted the record on which the city relied in refusing to rezone the property was incomplete. But she said it was unreasonable of Kramer to have determined that council both erred and used an inadequate record in denying Price's request. An inadequate record, she said, cannot be erroneous, also.

In overturning the city's decision, Kramer did not limit the scope of his decision to the information that was considered by council, Swanberg contended. She said the judge should have sent the case back to City Council, with a stipulation that findings of fact be clarified.

However, Paine said several considerations used in Kramer's decision-making were acknowledged, by the city, to be part of the record. Contrary to what Swanberg argued, Paine said the city had agreed that council decisions involving two other Twin Falls mall projects should be considered as part of the record.

Paine said Woodbury Corp. and General Growth Corp. both obtained the necessary city zoning for malls, neither of which has been built yet. Kramer's consideration of those zoning decisions was a justified step in his reaching a decision about the case involving Price and the city, Paine said.

The Supreme Court made no decision on the case Monday.

May be weeks before farmers need it

Water begins flow into canal system

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Water has been diverted into two Magic Valley canal systems, although it could be several weeks before farmers served by the systems need it.

Late last week, the North Side Canal Co. opened the gates to allow water into its system. Monday, the Twin Falls Canal Co. did the same.

On the north side, Ted Diehl, the canal company manager, said the water must fill Wilson Lake before it can flow into the rest of the canal system. That should happen sometime this week, he said.

It probably will be several weeks before farmers served by the canal company require irrigation water, Diehl said.

The Twin Falls Canal Co. also has a lake that must be filled before water can flow through it into the rest of the canal system. But Murtaugh Lake already has enough water for that purpose, said canal company manager Warren Travis.

However, Travis said he may hold much of the water that is just starting into the canals at Murtaugh Lake, so that company workers can do more maintenance on the downstream canals.

"It's just going to be a judgment call based on what the weather looks like," he said.

Most fields in the Twin Falls tract are too wet for farmers to work in right now, he said. The ground has not been prepared for planting, so it could take at least 10 days before farmers need water from the canal system. "That's just a guess," Travis said.

Meanwhile, Milner Dam remains open, allowing run-off from the heavy winter snows to proceed down the Snake River. Monday morning, more than 15,000 cubic feet per second of water was passing through Milner Dam, heading toward Twin and Shoshone falls. By comparison, the Twin Falls and Northside canal companies together diverted about 350 to 450 cubic feet per second of water into their systems.

Flows past Milner Dam will remain heavy for the next few days, said Keith Ebersole, an irrigation management specialist for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation in Burley. The dam probably will not be closed until the end of June or July, he said.

Other Magic Valley canal companies that divert water at Milner Dam probably will wait until the middle of the month before diverting water into their systems, Ebersole said.

Alcoholic patients quietly make move to Gooding hospital

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

GOODING — What took months to decide required a weekend to accomplish.

The Walker Center for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse moved its patients into a wing of the Gooding County Memorial Hospital last Saturday and Sunday, in a temporary arrangement officials say will benefit both facilities.

Walker patients are occupying four rooms, which have been separated from the rest of the hospital by double doors, according to hospital administrator Ed Myers.

Finishing touches on two additional rooms, which have been built in a solarium at one end of the wing, will be completed this week. A bathroom and shower also have been installed.

Walker patients will eat and sleep at the hospital, but they will hold activities in a house near the hospital and in a mobile home located just outside the solarium door. Walker Center's administrative staff will operate from the house.

Myers says the remodeling and relocation have gone smoothly, with no major problems.

The move came after several months of debate over whether Walker patients should be housed at the hospital.

Walker officials first proposed the move in an effort to cut the high utility and maintenance costs involved with their location at the former state tuberculosis center. Gooding Hospital officials said the arrangement also would provide needed revenues for the hospital. However, local doctors strongly opposed the move, saying the hospital lacked adequate space.

A contract between St. Benedict's Hospital of Ogden, Utah, which owns Walker Center, and the Gooding hospital was signed last month.

St. Benedict's plans to build a new facility adjacent to the hospital. Myers says he and St. Benedict officials will meet with an architect Thursday to discuss the design.

Jerome assessor may run, if salary boosted

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Assessor William Kersey Jr. of Jerome County said Monday that he may reconsider his earlier decision not to seek re-election.

Kersey, a Democrat, is completing his first four-year term. Several weeks ago he announced that he would not run for re-election because of the low salary paid the assessor. The salary is $16,500 per year.

Monday, Kersey and several other department heads met in executive session with the county commissioners to discuss pay raises. The commissioners will set salaries for the coming year when they meet next Monday.

Following the meeting, commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff said the commissioners and the department heads were discussing salaries for both elected officials and employees.

Kersey said he told the commissioners that if the assessor's salary is increased to a "livable wage," he probably will seek re-election.

Kersey said he had agreed to do certain things when he took office, and he has done them. Now, he will step down unless the salary offered is closer to what he can earn in private business.

The assessor said he will expect at least an indication from the commissioners soon, since the filing deadline for the May 25 primary is Wednesday at 5 p.m.

The salaries of other assessors in the Magic Valley are: $17,500 in Gooding County, $20,000 in Cassia County, $14,000 in Lincoln County, $18,400 in Blaine County, $18,600 in Minidoka County and $17,120 in Twin Falls County.

Also attending Monday's meeting were county Clerk Glenda Belk, Treasurer Elsie Childers and Sheriff Elza Hall.

The Lofenalac is so expensive — it is $30 a can and the Amens use eight or nine cans a month, — it is provided through the state's Women, Infant and Children program.

"It's hard making two different meals each meal," Sandy says. Moreover, Justin is also a picky eater. "A lot of recipes, he'd turn up his nose," she says.

Still, he is starting to learn what he may not eat. He has been known to say to relatives offering him treats, "I'm PKU, and I can't have that."

Now a lively, talkative 4-year-old, Justin shows no sign of his condition. He says he likes playing "'nopoly," adding, "I have a whole bunch of things I play with."

When it became clear Justin was developing normally, the Amens decided they wanted to give him a brother or sister. Although PKU is inherited, it is caused by a recessive gene. Thus, both Randy and Sandy are carriers of the PKU gene, although neither has had a history of the problem in their family.

As carriers, it means that they had a 50 percent chance another child would also be a carrier, but not suffer from the disease. They had a 25 chance the child would have no PKU gene at all and a 25 percent chance it would be PKU.

With only a one in four chance of PKU occurring, the Amens decided to have another child. Unfortunately, the odds went against them.

Ryan was born about three months ago, and a blood test revealed he, like his brother, was PKU. "I guess I thought all along that he wouldn't be," Sandy says with a sigh.

After the initial shock, the Amens have adjusted with spirit. They are happy that Justin will not be the only one in the family on the diet.

Furthermore, they know that PKU does not have to be disastrous. They understand how it can be controlled.

PKU occurs in about one out of every 10,000 to 15,000 births. Soon after Justin was born, the Amens got in touch with an organization of Idaho families with PKU children — there are about 13 PKU children in this state. Both Randy and Sandy remember the relief they felt getting together with others in the same situation: The children were "so normal."

But the condition must be caught early enough. The musty smell, which Sandy began to notice with Justin about a week after he was born, is not always alarming.

"By the time it (PKU) would be picked up by most of us, a lot of IQ points would be lost," says Cheryl Juntunen, the physical health director for the South Central District Health Department. Parents of all out-of-hospital births reported to the state's Bureau of Vital Statistics are contacted by the department about a blood test, she says.

The results of the new treatment procedures can be a normal childhood. A brain scan shows that Justin is developing normally. Ryan's phenylalanine level also has been stabilized.

Another bright spot is the evidence that suggests that children may be eased off the diet after they are 6, when some researchers feel a person's brain is fully developed. Other researchers say children should stay on the diet until they are 12 or more. The Amens are aiming to try to keep their boys on the diet until they are well into their teens.

Sandy knows the real test of diet maintenance will be when her children start attending school. Justin "hasn't been around other children, and I haven't had to worry about it. I will."

She knows she will have to keep trying to explain why he can't eat the foods other boys and girls are eating. But "I will do anything I have to do."

Conference discusses how to eat well on low income

TWIN FALLS — A "self-help conference" on eating nutritionally on a limited income will be held Wednesday in the First United Methodist Church hall, 360 Shoshone St. E.

The free seminar is sponsored by the South Central Community Action Agency and the Idaho Hunger Action Council of Boise.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Two workshops, on gleaning and on low-cost nutrition, will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon. From 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., workshops on preserving food through dehydration and methods for starting a farmer's market will be held.

For more information, call Janice Abe at 733-9351 or Mary Lee Pfefferle at 324-8856.

Jerome County candidates file for May primary vote

JEROME — Only one contest has developed so far in Jerome County for the May 25 primary, but eight candidates had filed by Monday.

Incumbent county Commissioner Henry Schutte will face Carl Montgomery for the Republican nomination as the Third District representative to the commission. Both are Eden-area farmers.

Other officeholders who have filed are: Commissioner Mel Grindstaff, a Democrat from the First District; Glenda Belk, a Democrat who is the county clerk, auditor and recorder; Elsie Childers, a Republican who was appointed as county treasurer; and Gerald Ostler, a Republican who is the county coroner.

Irene Roberts, a Democrat, has filed to challenge Childers in November, and Richard W. Goetsch, a Republican, has filed to challenge Belk.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions is 5 p.m. this Wednesday.

Golf clubs found after homeowner reports burglary

TWIN FALLS — A couple of burglars at least have faith that winter will end soon.

Lynn Ricks, 342 Casa Grande Court, Twin Falls, told police Monday that someone entered his home and took $185 worth of golfing equipment.

But later, a neighbor found the golf clubs, a bag and some jackets at the rear of the Ricks' home. He reported he had seen two young men leaving the area Sunday.

The items were returned to Ricks.

Burglary suspect to district court

TWIN FALLS — Michael Anthoney, 19, 157 Main Ave. E., Twin Falls, was bound over Monday to Fifth District Court on a charge of first-degree burglary.

Anthoney is accused of breaking a window in a pickup truck parked in the 100 block of Second Avenue East on March 5 and stealing sunglasses, a case full of cassette tapes and an overnight bag. He was apprehended by Twin Falls police at the scene of the alleged burglary.

No trial date was set. Anthoney remains in jail on $1,500 bond.

Obituaries

Eugene Smith

TWIN FALLS — Eugene C. Smith, 55, of Rio Vista, Calif., former Magic Valley resident, died March 28 in Martinez, Calif., following a long illness.

Born Feb. 22, 1927, in Castleford, he was reared and educated in Twin Falls and Jerome, graduating from Jerome High School. He served in the Navy during World War II and settled in California where he worked as a commercial fisherman.

Surviving are: his father, Lewis D. Smith of Twin Falls; three brothers, twin brother George Smith of Coos Bay, Ore., Niel Smith of Springfield, Ore., and Jim Smith of Nevada; five sisters, Elsie Cardwell of Moses Lake, Wash., Edna Shockey and Fayette Davis, both of Boise, Joyce Shanafelt of Reno, Nev., and Lois Galley of Kimberly. He was preceded in death by his mother.

Services were held in Concord, Calif.

Susan Yost

BUHL — Susan Yost, 67, of Buhl, died Saturday at St. Luke's Hospital in Boise after a short illness.

Born Sept. 22, 1914, in Salisbury, England, she married Lloyd Yost of Buhl in 1943 in England. They moved to London where they lived during World War II. She moved to the United States in 1946 with her son, settling in Buhl for a year. They moved to Fairbury, Neb., where she worked for the Hested Food Co. for nine years. In 1956 they returned to Buhl and she worked for the R & R Cafe and the Arctic Circle until her death.

She was a member of the English War Brides in Buhl.

Surviving are her husband of Buhl; a son, Gary Yost, and a daughter-in-law, Tamara Yost, both of Buhl; and three grandsons.

The service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Farmer Chapel in Buhl with the Rev. Malachy McNeill officiating. Burial will be in the West End Cemetery.

Friends may call at the chapel until 8 p.m. Wednesday and until the service on Thursday.

Violet Bagley Mulot

TWIN FALLS — Violet Bagley Mulot, approximately 75, formerly of Twin Falls, died Monday morning in her home in Seattle after an apparent heart attack.

Surviving are: a brother, D. Wesley Bagley of Twin Falls; and four sisters, Mrs. Neal Garrison and Mrs. Wardell Freeman, both of Twin Falls, Mrs. Ed Berryman of Ogden and Mrs. Herman Turner of Fresno, Calif.

Preceding her in death were her husband, parents, six brothers and a sister.

Arrangements are being made in Seattle.

AirLifeLine pilots save lives with their mercy flights

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is to bring you up to date on AirLifeLine, the non-profit association of airplane pilots (and others) who volunteer their time and planes to fly medical personnel, equipment and supplies, free of charge, in emergency situations.

We are progressing very well. We now have almost 500 pilots in 40 states. Money remains a problem, but I suppose that is the constant battle any group of our type faces.

Recently several volunteer pilots engaged in a four-month project flying mother's milk twice weekly from Sacramento to Modesto, Calif. to save a 1-month-old baby who had been kidnapped with his mother two weeks earlier.

The baby was found near his brutally murdered mother and taken to Modesto Memorial Hospital. There the doctors found that the baby was allergic to baby formula and might not survive without mother's milk. The call for mother's milk went out, and 13 mothers responded! Members of the Sacramento-based AirLifeLine donated their time, flight costs and privately owned craft in making the 60-mile hop between Sacramento and Modesto on a "mother's milk run" to keep the baby alive. The infant is alive today and doing well.

AirLifeLine also made three mercy flights to Culiacan, Mexico, in cooperation with the non-profit Surgical Eye Expeditions International in sending teams of specialists to perform corrective eye surgery at a clinic. They have provided free medical service to 131 Culiacan patients.

AirLifeLine recently flew a kidney to San Francisco where it was transferred to a commerical airline and delivered to a patient awaiting a transplant in Tennessee. Another pilot flew a rare blood type north to Oregon for an accident victim who might have died without it.

AirLifeLine is a network of caring professionals who volunteer their services to deliver vital human organs, tissue and rare blood types to recipients in remote areas not reachable by commercial carriers.

Your publicizing AirLifeLine has provided great impetus to our organization and has inspired our board of directors to name Dear Abby its first Honorary Life Member.

For those interested in membership, or in making tax-deductible donations, our address is: AirLifeLine, 1005 8th St., Suite 302, Sacramento, Calif. 95814. Phone: (916) 442-6230. Again we thank you, as do the increasing number of beneficiaries of AirfLifeLine services. Sincerely yours

— FREDERICK J. SIMONELLI, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Vitamins can't cure arthritis

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you were discussing the fat soluble vitamins and you said we really worry about vitamins A and D. I take a vitamin capsule a day that contains 5,000 U.S.P. units of A and 400 U.S.P. units of D.

I was told it was good for arthritis. I would like to know what side effects these two vitamins have on people. What parts of the body are affected?

DEAR READER — The amount you are taking, if that is all you are taking, is not likely to cause you any harm at all. The vitamin preparation you are taking meets the recommended daily dietary allowance (RDA). In addition you are getting vitamin A from some of the foods you are consuming so your daily intake should be well above the RDA.

The National Academy of Sciences (the body that determines the RDA for vitamins and other nutrients) recommends that adults avoid taking more than 25,000 IU or more on a daily basis to avoid vitamin A toxicity. Your intake of vitamin D is also within the accepted range. It should not be more than three to four times the RDA of 400 units.

Vitamin A toxicity can cause your hair to fall out, your eyebrows to fall out, unsightly skin changes, fatigue and even serious liver damage. In children it can cause an increase in pressure within the brain that mimics a brain tumor. Children should not take more than 10,000 IU a day on a chronic basis.

Vitamin A is extremely important to your health, but it will not cure arthritis. Neither will vitamin D. That is a hoax. Vitamin D is useful if an increase in calcium absorption is desired as to help prevent or treat osteoporosis (which is dissolving bones, not arthritis).

There is even good information to show that an adequate intake of vitamin A is important in preventing some forms of cancer. And there are big changes in how vitamin A intake is calculated. Labels will be switching to retinols very soon.

This and the role of vitamin A is discussed in The Health Letter 19-2, Vitamin A: An Essential Hazard, which I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I noticed that you recommend cotton socks for foot problems. I don't disagree but I'm sure that you and other health professionals are unaware of the subtle but progressive phase-out of cotton in the manufacture of clothing and bed linens.

Several years ago I protested at the nursing home where I work that the patient acceptance of the new synthetic sheets and "Johnnies" was poor. Patients complained they were cold, clammy and nonabsorbent. Some were allergic. By then muslin and cotton sheets were unavailable and besides the laundry department found the synthetics facilitated their work.

I checked an outlet store recently and found not one sock with the word cotton on the label. This was all new stock. Just thought you might like to know.

DEAR READER — No, I don't really like to know. It is a polyester world. But if you search there are still some 100 percent cotton socks. I checked Sears catalog and they have 100 percent cotton thermal socks. I recommend cotton and wool because they absorb moisture.

Many synthetic fibers trap moisture that causes body odors. That includes synthetic underwear that doesn't breathe.

Dug out of Squaw Valley avalanche

Woman buried 5 days still alive

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — A woman ski lift operator buried for five days under tons of snow in a massive Sierra avalanche at the Alpine Meadows resort was miraculously found alive and conscious Monday.

Anna Conrad, 22, was found by searchers using specially trained dogs in an A-frame building devastated by the snow slide that plowed into the resort on Wednesday.

Ms. Conrad's boyfriend, Frank Yatesman, was killed in the slide that claimed six lives. One man was still missing.

The crew of a helicopter that flew Ms. Conrad to nearby Tahoe Forest Hospital said she was conscious, chatted with a nurse aboard the craft and expressed disbelief that she had been buried for five days.

She suffered a black eye and a possible cut on her hand, they said.

"I've never seen anything like this before," Steve Miles, chief dispatcher aboard the chopper, said.

Ms. Conrad was wearing gloves and a heavy parka issued to employees of the resort when she was dug out.

She was given warm oxygen and medication on the helicopter.

A reporter saw Ms. Conrad blink her eyes as she was carried by stretcher from the helicopter to the hospital emergency room.

At Alpine Meadows, a roommate of Ms. Conrad, Sandy Harris, danced and exclaimed, "Oh my God, oh my God, I thought she was dead," when she learned of the rescue.

Still missing was the resort's longtime avalanche expert, Bernie Kingery.

Six bodies were recovered last week. The search was called off Friday because of avalanche danger and resumed shortly after noon Monday.

Ms. Conrad reportedly arrived on cross-country skies at the resort shortly before the avalanche swept down the mountain.

Earlier Monday, two snow slides that blocked the three-mile access road to the popular Sierra Nevada resort delayed the arrival of about 150 searchers armed with shovels and trained dogs.

The searchers raced against an approaching snow storm to look for the last two victims.

They were hampered by enormous snow depths. The dogs were confused by scattered clothing and ski equipment in the mountain of snow that surrounded the lodge and A-frame building in which Kingery was working.

The force of the snow knocked a 25-foot hole in the uphill side of the building and carried several people out the other side.

Skies were fair before noon, but the National Weather Service predicted more snow and high winds in the mountains on which more than a dozen feet of snow were dumped last week.

That snow created severe avalanche dangers. Before work could begin Monday, dynamite was dumped from helicopters to break loose potential avalanches at Alpine Meadows.

All but a handful of people were evacuated during the weekend from the resort because of avalanche danger. About 400 residents were evacuated from portions of nearby Squaw Valley.

Coalition wants fewer power plants

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Northwest Conservation Act Coalition contends two more Washington Public Power Supply System nuclear plants could be "deferred indefinitely" without threatening the region's electricity supply.

During its weekend conference, the group dismissed the immediate need for WPPSS plants 1 and 3, in addition to Washington Water Power Co.'s planned coal-fired power plant. Two other WPPSS nuclear plants have already been terminated.

The group defended its position with the latest Bonneville Power Administration forecast, which points to a 1.7 percent annual increase in electricity demand through 2000.

The BPA itself contends the forecast demonstrates the need for WPPSS plants 1, 2 and 3 to meet future demand.

Reis' group contends the Northwest is better off investing in projects that cost less than the WPPSS nuclear plants and the WWP coal plant.

A report by the coalition notes that while the average cost of the region's electricity is now 3.5 cents per kilowatt-hour, electricity from WPPSS plants 4 and 5 would have cost 11.8 cents, and electricity from the WWP plant will cost 10.4 cents.

IHC moves to diversify business

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Intermountain Health Care, which operates 24 hospitals in three states, has decided to branch out into related businesses — such as insurance, day-surgery clinics and hospital computer technology.

At its recent annual meeting, the IHC board of directors approved a reorganization of the non-profit company. Intermountain Health Care was designated as a holding company to coordinate the activities of five new subsidiary corporations.

IHC was organized in 1975 to take over management of hospitals formerly owned by the Mormon Church. The church donated the hospitals to the new management group which now owns, leases, or operates 24 hospitals in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. IHC leases Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley.

IHC board chairman William Jones said new subsidiaries are:

• IHC Hospital Corp., which will continue to manage member hospitals.

• IHC Foundation, which will act as a fund raising organization.

• A yet-to-be-named insurance corporation that will provide general liability, workmen's compensation and other type of insurance to IHC hospitals and others.

• An affiliated services corporation that will coordinate group purchasing programs, biomedical engineering and data processing through contractual arrangements with IHC and other hospitals. (IHC is already managing a group purchasing plan with 90 hospitals in 11 western states.)

• A professional services corporation that will operate clinics, outpatient surgical centers and preventive medicine programs for business and industry.

Jones said the changes will allow IHC to remain competitive with other medical care companies.

"This major restructuring reflects the board's determination to remain a leader in the health care field," said Jones. "Health care organizations across the country are investigating this legal process that has been a successful format for other businesses and industries."

He also said the new structure would enhance IHC's position in the marketplace and ability to obtain additional capital.

Scott Parker will continue serving as president and chief executive officer of IHC. David H. Jeppson, who had been serving as an executive vice president, will become president of the hospital management subsidiary.

Wendover gets land gift

WENDOVER, Utah (UPI) — The National Park Service Monday gave the town of Wendover the deed to 4.33 acres of land on the old Wendover Air Force Auxiliary Field.

The base, which has a huge landing strip, was the training center for B-29 bombers during World War II including the crew of the Enola Gay which dropped the atomic bombs on Japan. The old base is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Air Force officials turned over the airstrip and hangers to the community several years ago. The base was shut down in 1963.

The additional property given to town Monday includes a swimming pool and other base support facilities. Wendover plans to refurbish the pool and to build other recreational facilities.

Off the court, officiating usually complex

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The black and white of officiating high school athletics is more a dull gray backstage.

Constantly at work are economics, personal likes and dislikes, winning and losing, geographical residence, and inter-officiating strife and, indeed, administrators working directly opposite of their coaches.

All of the factors must be dealt with by one person — Paul Ostyn, who serves as the district commissioner. He administrates at certifying meetings, takes his total direction from the district board of control and listens unceasingly to the complaints of administrators, coaches, fans and other officials.

"Sometimes it is funny sitting in the middle because you hear the same story from two and three different standpoints," Ostyn admits.

His position is tenable only because he has basic rules governing the officiating game.

One of his major problems is that about half of the coaches within his jurisdiction do not know how the system works. In most cases it is the fault of the coach and in others the blame falls on the school administrator.

A constant gripe from coaches is that they "have no say" about which officials do their games. They definitely have that through a rating system but even more specifically by being able to "blackball" certain officials.

Ostyn has put together a ranking system that draws imput from all three sides.

First, Ostyn rates the officials from his personal observations. "My rating is probably the fairest of the bunch because I really try to be objective about it," Ostyn said. "It (his rating) may not always be right but it's objective."

Secondly, a group of 13 to 15 coaches meet face-to-face and rate officials.

"We rotate (who is on the committee) it among the schools, but it varies," Ostyn said of the coaching group. "If somebody has been very critical about the officials, we try to get them on the committee and if they have some good suggestions, we'll try and use them."

Thirdly, an officials board, mostly consisting of veteran officials, meets and rates all officials.

Ostyn then compiles the three separate ratings given to each official. Each rating carries the same weight and a final combined rating is given to each official.

With some 55 varsity officials in the district, the master is divided into quartiles. The next season, varsity officiating assignments are made with officials in the upper two quartiles getting the first call. On heavy game nights, as many as 36 or 38 varsity officials plus another 12 to 16 junior varsity officials are pressed into action. On an average game night, only those officials ranked in the best half are working.

But it is at that juncture that this system is hit by ramifications.

Within reason, a coach is allowed to list six to eight officials he or she does not want to work a game. No reason is usually necessary. Personality conflict, charges of incompetence, etc. The "blackball" is available.

While everyone thinks that blackballing is a one-way prerogative of coaches, most of them fail to realize there are officials who won't work for a particular coach or school. Additionally, some officials, many of the better ones, in fact, flatly decline to work girls' games. Conversely, there are six to eight who will work nothing but girls' games.

And officials have certain social

'New look' Cubs win with home run power

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The "new look" of the Chicago Cubs certainly looked good on Opening Day.

Bump Wills and Keith Moreland, a couple of Cub newcomers, slammed home runs to pace Chicago's 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday in a game shortened to eight innings by rain.

"I think the people we've acquired are better than what they have had in Chicago," new Cubs Manager Lee Elia said. "It's always good to win an opener, but for a team like us it's really important to win it."

Wills, acquired just a couple of weeks ago from the Texas Rangers, hit the second pitch of the season over the right field wall off loser Mario Soto to send the Cubs on their way.

"I was shocked when he hit that," said Elia. "It all happened so quickly. Here we were, a bunch of renegades from all over the place, and bang, all of a sudden we're ahead.

"Suddenly we were up 1-0 and the juices were flowing."

Moreland, picked up from Philadelphia, as were several of the new Cubs, began the second inning with a homer off Soto. In the eighth inning Moreland accounted for the Cubs' final run by singling home Larry Bowa, yet another newcomer from the Phillies.

The Cubs got pretty good pitching Monday, with starter and winner Doug Bird yielding only five hits and one run through the first seven innings.

Even though it was just an initial victory to start the season, the Cubs' locker room was boisterous within seconds after the game was called.

"This place is happy, jubilant, excited," Wills said, grinning. "I think the Cubs last year came to the ballpark expecting to lose.

"But today there was a lot of excitement. We figure from here on out it's can-make-anything-happen."

The Reds were held scoreless until two out in the seventh, when rookie pinch-hitter German Barranca doubled and scored on Ron Oester's single.

Record Oriole crowd watches Birds soar

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Eddie Murray's home run bat had plenty of company in the Baltimore Orioles' 13-5 blasting of the Kansas City Royals Monday before a club record regular season crowd of 52,034 in the American League opener.

With winner Sammy Stewart throwing two-hit ball at the Royals through five innings of relief, new Orioles Dan Ford and Cal Ripkin Jr., sandwiched their homers before and after a third-inning power display by Murray and Gary Roenicke.

Murray's fifth career grand slam and Roenicke's solo shot turned a 2-1 Oriole lead into a runaway as the Orioles lashed 16 hits off four pitchers.

"I just hope we can keep it up for a while and run away from some people," Murray said.

Roenicke, who also had three singles, chased loser Dennis Leonard with his homer. Ripkin's two-run shot in the second inning was his first major league home run.

"I was so excited and pumped up that I tried to push the ball out on my way to first base," said Ripkin, the son of the Orioles' third base coach.

Ford, who came to the Orioles from the California Angels, ignited a 6-run seventh inning with a 3-run blast off Grant Jackson.

"The crowd is super here because they're good baseball people and this team is always capable of winning," said Ford. "These people come to expect good baseball. I think I can help this club."

Frank White, the Royals' second baseman, drove in four runs with a 3-run homer and a single. George Brett homered off Stewart in the seventh.

"The thing people always say is why isn't Sammy a starter," said Orioles pitching coach Ray Miller. "But he came in in the fifth inning with two men on base and no outs and held them. It's hard to find somebody who can do that on a daily basis and that was the whole ball game right there."

Umpires granted large pay hikes, improved benefits

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only eight hours before the scheduled start of the season, baseball's umpires reached agreement with the two major leagues on a four-year contract Monday that will boost top salaries to as much as $75,000 per year by 1985.

Under terms of the new contract, which was negotiated over a five-month period, starting salaries of umpires will be increased immediately from $18,000 to $26,000 and be raised to $36,000 over four years.

The immediate salary increases are even better for senior umpires, such as Doug Harvey and John Kibler. Their salaries will be boosted from $50,000 to $70,000 this year and by the end of the four-year contract all senior umpires will receive $75,000 a year.

"This will put umpires into the top one percent of all salaried employees in our country," said Richie Phillips, attorney for the Major League Umpires Association. "We feel the terms of this agreement reflects on the part of baseball a recognition of the great contribution umpires have made to the game."

In addition to higher salaries, the Major League Umpires Association also received major concessions in the following areas:

• A 100 percent increase in pension benefits. The majority of umpires who retire will now receive $300,000 more than they would have received under the old pension plan.

• A 50 percent increase in widow benefits.

• Increases in benefits for previously retired umpires totaling about $150 per month per year of service.

• The addition to the major league staffs of minor league umpires who refused to work during the 1979 major league umpires strike. One was added to the major league staffs last year and five more have been added this year.

• An increase in daily per diem expenses from $77 to $90. The money will be used to pay for hotels, meals and transportation to and from the ballparks. The leagues will continue to pay for travel between cities.

'This will put umpires into the top one percent of all salaried employees in our country.'
—Richie Phillips umpires' attorney

• An agreement to select umpires for post season play on a merit basis instead of by rotation.

• Increases in pay for post-season games. Umpires will receive $15,000 for the World Series, $10,000 for the league championship series, $7,500 for any divisional playoff that may occur and $2,500 for the All-Star Game.

• A 50 percent increase in disability payments. An umpire who is disabled can now make $36,000 a year for the rest of his life.

• A 50 percent increase in life insurance benefits.

• Agreement from the two league presidents that they will crack down harder on players and managers who physically abuse umpires.

Phillips said certain aspects of the new agreement can be renegotiated after two years, and that according to terms of the agreement the umpires reserve the right to strike on those issues if no settlement is reached by spring training of 1984. Phillips said the post-season salaries and the matter of umpires being selected on merit were two of the issues that could be renegotiated after two years.

While the basic agreement took several months to iron out, Phillips admitted the umpires had the upper hand in negotiations because of the stigma still hanging over the head of major league baseball from last year's players strike and the fact the umpires had shown unity in going out on strike in 1979.

"There was pressure on them (the two leagues) to get the season off to as smooth a start as possible," said Phillips. "I don't think we felt the pressure. They were surprised we struck in '79 and they didn't want to go through another strike."

Twin Falls bowler paces national tourney

Since it only cost a buck, why not?

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Since the entry fee couldn't be much less, John Kiser figured it wouldn't hurt any to give it a shot.

The 19-year-old Twin Falls bowler paid his dollar a few months back to enter a bowling tourney sponsored by a national beer distributor and now finds himself leading the nation and one of five men who have won an expenses-paid trip to St. Louis to compete in a rolloff on national television.

"It only cost a dollar so I figured I might as well," Kiser said Saturday shortly after receiving word from Greenville, Wis., that he's one of the final five.

Kiser, who said he's only been seriously into the sport for less than a year, maintains the lanes and helps run the front desk at Magic Bowl. When the "Budweiser Natural Light Hall of Fame Bowling Tournament" flyer arrived Kiser entered. Despite sporting a 160 average at the time, he rolled games of 223, 216 and 219 for a 660 scratch on Feb. 17. Add on his 120 handicap and Kiser had a spot in the regional competition.

Bowling on March 10, Kiser's three games were 226, 279 and 227 for a 732 scratch series. With handicap his total came to 852, good enough to win the regional that includes all of the country from Wyoming to Hawaii and Alaska.

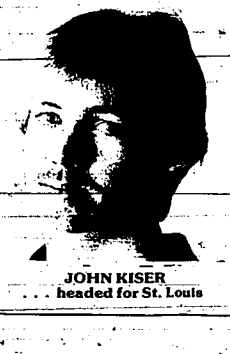

When one of the tourney administrators phoned Saturday afternoon to inform Kiser of his success, he said Kiser's 852 is tops in the country.

"He didn't let me know who the four other winners are," said Kiser, who has upped his current Moonshiners Mixed Doubles League average to 180.

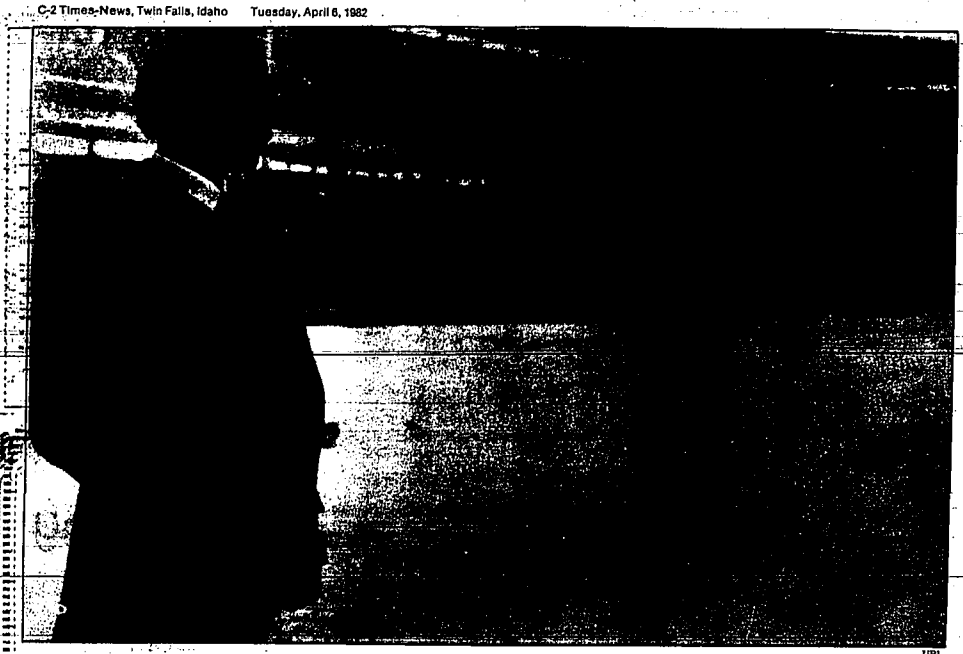

The 10 regional winners (five men and five women) will compete in St. Louis May 8-9. The top prize is $10,000 and the minimum prize is $1,000 in addition to the trip for two. Kiser will also bowl with a hall of famer in mixed doubles competition.

"It just feels fantastic, it really does," Kiser said.

It's not known how many people entered the tourney, but Magic Bowl had 311 local entries in the tourney that raises money for the Bowling Hall of Fame.

Milwaukee's Kevin Bass watches snow fall at County Stadium. Six inches was expected Monday, postponing today's opener.

CSI, Utah Tech split double-header

PROVO, Utah — Utah Tech-Provo pitcher Dave Draper received plenty of slugging help from his teammates Monday to continue his mastery over the College of Southern Idaho baseball team.

Draper, who throws a lot of off-speed pitchers, gained his second win over the Eagles in an 8-7 decision. He is the only hurler who owns a win over Jim Walker's Eagles, now 12-2.

CSI gained its 12th win in the second game of the twinbill with a 12-1 five-inning victory.

In the opener, Draper wasn't exactly sterling in going the distance as he allowed eight hits and seven runs. But three home runs in the bottom of fifth inning gave Utah Tech a come-from-behind win.

Bryan Nash, Jim Brightshue and Andrew Carlson all hit homers in Tech's four-run fifth. Nash's was a two-run shot while the other two were solo shots. All came off Todd Newman after CSI had taken a 5-4 lead.

Mark Barbagelata had a home run and a single in the game while Bob Thompson collected two hits.

In the second game a trio of CSI hurlers, Scott Troester, Greg Stefanich and Tracy Poulson, evened the day's action by limiting Tech to one hit in five innings.

"We wanted to throw all three of them and get a good look at them before we get to the (Roadrunner) tourney in Arizona later this week," CSI assistant Coach Jim Dawson said.

CSI drilled the ball in the second game for 11 hits. The Eagles scored three in the first and added seven more in the second.

Mike Robbins had a two-run double in the first inning and scored on an error for the third run.

Barbagelata had singled in a run to start the CSI seven-run outburst. He was followed by Thompson's two-run single and Mike Robbins' RBI doubl. The three other CSI runs came on Utah Tech errors.

Thompson finished the day with four hits in six at bats, three RBIs and two walks.

CSI is on its way to Mesa, Ariz., for a three-day tourney starting Thursday. The Eagles face Fullerton, Calif., Junior College in their opening game.

Four, maybe more, openers delayed

Snow, high winds, bitter cold greets baseball season

By United Press International

Opening Day arrived in Cincinnati Monday with rain and temperatures in the low 40s.

It wasn't pretty, but at least the Reds and Chicago Cubs managed to play eight innings, which is more than many other teams expect today.

Scheduled openers in Milwaukee, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia have already been pushed back because of cold and predicted storms while slated games in New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago look like [illegible]

In Milwaukee, the Brewers said [illegible] their home opener, scheduled [illegible] today, was postponed because [illegible] accumulation and would be played Wednesday. The Brewers had been scheduled to open the season against Cleveland, have an off-day and then play the Indians again on Thursday. The plans were revised because a storm was expected to dump about six inches of snow in the area.

At Detroit, cold weather chilled the Tigers out of their Monday workout and forced the club to push back their scheduled Tuesday opener with the Toronto Blue Jays. The club's opener, a near sellout, was reset for Wednesday, originally an open date on the schedule provided for just such an emergency.

At Chicago, the White Sox said Monday that snow and high winds forced postponement of their scheduled season opener with the Boston Red Sox from Tuesday to Wednesday.

"The snow is supposed to continue the rest of the night," a White Sox spokesman said. "There's just no way we can play tomorrow, so we've given in to Mother Nature."

The National Weather Service Monday posted winter storm warnings in the Chicago area and predicted accumulations of up to one foot in the city's South Side, where the White Sox' Comiskey Park is located.

The team had covered the entire playing surface with a tarp and had planned to hire extra workers to shovel away the snow if the storm had let up Monday evening.

At Oakland, Calif., the forecast calls for showers for today's scheduled opener between the A's and California Angels. The Angels practiced Monday in Anaheim while the A's remained at their training camp in Phoenix, Ariz., to preserve the Oakland Coliseum field, which is wet from previous rains.

At Pittsburgh, a forecast of heavy snow led to the postponement of the Pirates' scheduled opener against the Montreal Expos. The National Weather Service said heavy snow, six to eight inches, could fall in the area, beginning late Monday.

At New York and Philadelphia, the forecasts called for snow and cold.

Baseball managed one victory against the elements. At Bloomington, Minn., the forecast calls for temperatures in the 20s, which would ordinarily force a postponement. But the Minnesota Twins this season play in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome, and should be able proceed with their opener against the Seattle Mariners.

Burley sweeps Tigers

MOUNTAIN HOME — Allen Rice and Rick Asson fired back-to-back shutouts Monday as Burley High defeated Mountain Home 4-0 and 11-0.

Rice limited the Tigers to just four hits in the opener and was only in trouble once, the fourth inning. Mountain Home loaded the bases with no outs, but Rice got a pitcher-to-home-to-first double play and then got a strikeout to kill the rally. Rice fanned six Tigers and walked three.

Burley collected just six hits in the second game, but some wild Mountain Home pitching and Tiger errors allowed the Bobcats to post 11 runs.

Asson fanned eight batters and walked three in getting the win. He was never in trouble as Burley raised its record to 2-1.

Kelly Kelcher and Asson led the Bobcats at the plate during the 14 innings. Each collected a double and three singles. Kelcher batted in four runs and scored three times while Asson scored three times.

"We didn't hit the ball real well, but we played good defense and got some help from Mountain Home's pitchers," Burley Coach Dean Satterfield said.

Mountain Home hurlers issued 13 walks on the day, seven in the first game and six in the second.

Burley will be at home Thursday to open play in the Mini-Cassia Easter Tournament. The Bobcats play Bonneville High at 1 p.m. and take on Boise High at 4 p.m.

Other teams taking part in the tourney include Pocatello, Twin Falls, Minico, Meridian and Nampa.

Kress resigns

POCATELLO — Highland High School boys' basketball Coach Ron Kress announced his resignation from the position Monday.

Kress had coached the Rams for 14 seasons, taking the Pocatello school to the state championship twice.

The coach said he wanted to devote more time to his farming operation near Rockland as part of the reason for his resignation. It is unknown if he will continue to teach at the school.

League OKd in-city moves Rozelle says

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle testified Monday that the league permitted the Los Angeles Rams to move to Anaheim because the two cities are part of the same metropolitan area.

Rozelle, testifying for the third day in the retrial of an antitrust suit filed against the NFL by the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum, said the same theory applied to the approval of the moves by the Boston Patriots to suburban Foxboro, Mass., and by the Dallas Cowboys to nearby Irving, Texas.

The NFL rejected Los Angeles city and county officials' requests for an expansion team in the Los Angeles Coliseum after the Rams moved out in 1979 because there was already a team — the Rams — playing in the area. Anaheim is about 30 miles south of Los Angeles.

Under questioning by NFL attorney Patrick Lynch, Rozelle said NFL Rule 4.3 — which requires approval from 21 of the 28 team owners for a franchise move — is "needed to protect the public."

"Fans are what we live on," Rozelle said. "We have to keep faith with them. We just can't get up and abandon them."

The Coliseum and Raiders — whose planned move to Los Angeles was blocked by the league — charged that Rule 4.3 is a violation of the federal antitrust laws. The first trial ended last August in a hung jury.

Rozelle was expected to continue testifying this morning.

Area coaches differ on rating system

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Among Magic Valley basktball coaches, reaction to the system of rating officials is decidedly mixed.

Some coaches find the present method of evaluating and assigning officials acceptable.

"Paul Ostyn has handled his job well for many, many years," Valley's Scott Tingey said. "Being consistent of officials is one of the more thankless jobs one can have."

"Ostyn does a good job," echoed Forrest Fennesbeck, also of Valley.

Others felt that the rating system doesn't sufficiently reflect the coaches' viewpoints, a serious charge.

"Sometimes when the whole thing is comprised of all three of them, it (the ratings) is quite different from what we (coaches) feel it should have been," said Gooding's Jolene Toone, who has served on the coaches' evaluating committee.

"There was some disparity, more than mild, from what the coaches and officials thought," said Bliss' Jerry Couch.

The degree with which the rating system is regarded by all is a matter of concern.

"Some who aren't rated as highly are still being considered for big games," Gooding's Don Fowler said. "It seems like the rating sheets we've turned in are being ignored."

However, not all coaches take advantage of the avenues available. Though they can avoid having particular referees work their games through the "blackballing" process, some skippers may not realize it exists.

When asked if there was an evaluation process that could conceivably bar an official from certain games — which presently exists — one coach said, "Not really, none that I know of."

Other have not opted for the blackball method.

"In the Twin Falls girls' program I don't think we've ever come to the point of saying we don't want so and so in our gym," Bruin Coach Kathy Anderson said. "But there are a couple I don't know if I'd mind doing that to."

Even cognizant coaches have difficulty arriving at an acceptable solution to judging referees. "It's tough to evaluate unless you go watch somebody else's ballgame," said Glenns Ferry's Gordon Brown, who pointed out that because of preoccupation with practices, scouting assignments and his or her own ballgames, a coach would find this inconvenient.

Another possible problem is the number of times an official's performance is personally viewed by Paul Ostyn. The commissioner observes most officials once a year but, because of heavy demands on his time, a few get checked only every other year.

"I don't see how watching an official once during the season can give you a good evaluation of his progress," Anderson said."

Just how much input the coaches should have is also a matter of debate.

"I don't know if I should have any direct input," Anderson said. "If I had my way about it I would go hand pick the officials that I wanted on the floor and probably so would every other coach and we'd all be vying for the same 10 or 20 officials."

Nation's youngest agent impresses clients, teams

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Player agent Brad Blank is out to change the much-maligned image of his wheeling, dealing profession.

He has plenty of time. At 21, the Brown University student is the youngest player agent in the country.

Blank operates out of the second-floor room in his fraternity house at the Ivy League school. Using a low-key style and a knowledge of players' salary structure, he negotiated contracts last year for three Brown football players and friends, Steve Curtin, Rick Villella and John Prassas.

Blank's approach is upfront and low budget.

"I don't like to put my arm around a guy and buy him a beer," he said. "Some guys take athletes to expensive restaurants. I take them to McDonald's and talk."

Blank took the unofficial title as the nation's youngest agent away from 24-year-old Texas Lance Blument last year. Since then, he has surprised some seasoned team executives.

"I assumed he was a 35-year-old lawyer or something," said Dick Steinberg, director of player development for the New England Patriots. "When he brought Rick (Villella) in to sign, I was really surprised. I thought he was Rick's kid brother."

Blank's business acumen impressed Steinberg.

Ostyn

Economics enter from the administrative view, particularly in the area of travel expenses (18 cents per mile). An administrator might tell Ostyn he wants only local officials at his home games and will refuse to accept ones from 40 miles away. Also, some administrators, unbeknownst to their own coaches, will blackball an official. So while that official may be one of that coaches' preferred arbiters, he won't get him. And the athletic director or principal won't tell the coach why. The coach simply will rail at Ostyn, who is precluded from revealing blackballs.

Ostyn chuckles over a situation he saw where a coach was telling an official over a beer that he was surprised that official hadn't worked any of his games. The official said he, too, wondered about that. Yet, that same coach had put that official on his blackball list for two seasons.

"The other part," Ostyn said, "are the fans who come up to me at games and start telling me why I should never send a particular official to a particular school. Yet, while the fan is saying the ref is a homer or incompetent, the guy is ranked one or two on his coach's list."

In his early commissioner years, Ostyn had a system whereby a coach could mail in an evaluation card after each game.

"We found that the losing coach consistently ranked the officials one to one and one-half points lower that the winning coach," Ostyn said. "Doing it by games makes it an emotional thing.

"That's why I feel that the way we're doing it now is the most equitable. You put 13 coaches together and start talking individuals, some one will say 'I don't want that guy in my gymnasium.' Someone else will say 'you never complained about him until you lost the two-overtime game.' It tends to take all the emotional and *personal feeling out and put every*thing in a fair light," Ostyn said.

Yet, Ostyn acknowledges that part of this system is flawed.

"I take all my direction from the district board. They say to mail the rating lists to the administrators and he, ostensibly, then would pass them on to the concerned coaches. I know that in some instances the coaches never see those lists. The administrator fills them out and mails them back in or sometimes simply throws them away. If a coach hasn't been getting these ranking lists for the past few years, the bottleneck is in his school, not in our ranking system," Ostyn said.

Although economics have to be considered, Ostyn feels that restriction tends most toward ripping the officials association apart.

"I think increasingly we're getting a feeling of sectionalism. We have a lot of east faction versus west faction. Probably the only time Glenns Ferry would see an eastern official would be at Declo. If things don't go well, there is the feeling that the eastern official turns provincial (homered) on Glenns Ferry. But if we had the capability of sending that same official back to Glenns Ferry later in the year, he'd be seen in a different area and this sectionalism thing wouldn't crop up in everyone's mind so much," Ostyn said.

He acknowledged this is true in A-4 circles, particularly the Northside Conference. Where gate receipts aren't big the distances officials must travel are.

"Our (the board and Ostyn's) aim is to give every school a look at officials from all quartiles. The A-1 and A-2 schools are going to get the better officials most of the time because, first, the size of the crowd is important and, second, the better officials want and have earned the right to work the higher caliber games and don't want to put up with the travel themselves. But all of the schools will get first quartile officials a few times each season," Ostyn said.

"Still, the number of times is regulated by the expenses involved, too. And another funny thing is that some of these schools become so used to certain, area officials that they'll rate those officials ahead of others who districtwide are ranked No. 1 and No. 2," he said.

The ratings are again shuffled for district tournaments. At that time, Ostyn will ask each tournament (committee and/or coaches) to list their 10 "preferred" officials. Another column allows blackballing. The officials who show up on neither list are placed in a neutral pool.

On nights when all five area district tournaments are going, some with two games each, the "preferred" list won't cover all of the games. Often, each tournament asks for the same officials. So Ostyn, on a day-to-day basis, makes assignments by phone. In such instances, he is forced to dip into the neutral pool, which draws some protest.

The state tournament assignments are conducted by the Idaho High School Activities Association office.

"This year, the officials knew the state assignments well before I did. In fact, I heard about them from the officials themselves," Ostyn said.

But to further show how poorly coaches participate in this by-play is the fact that the No. 1 and No. 2 officials selected by girls coaches to work state tournaments didn't work a girls game all season. Therefore, they had no basis on which to rate those officials.

"Something like that causes a lot of ill will among our officials, too," Ostyn said:

The rankings are also used to prune the officiating group.

"If we get an official who gets eight or nine 'don't want him back' ratings, we'll go to him and tell him he can't certify next year. As a rule of thumb, if an official shows up three consecutive years in the fourth quartile, we'll ask him to retire. In the past seven years, three to 10 officials have been eliminated after each season," Ostyn said.

Coaches also have another direct avenue of input, but seldom do they use it.

"Any coach can send me a written evaluation of any official after any game during the season," Ostyn said.

But in summing up, Ostyn said he felt this district had the best of it.

"I'm told several times a year by state officials that our officials association is the best in the state. I've been told they wished the other districts were as organized and competent. I think it proved out when this district sent more officials to state than any other," he said.

The man who heads the local officials organization also has equal respect.

"Paul Ostyn is as fair of a man as you'll ever meet," said one Twin Falls official. "He does a tremendous job in a very unsung position."

Bad weather dogs golf tour, washes out Masters practice

Nicklaus gets jump — toured Augusta last week

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Bad weather, which has been plaguing the PGA Tour ever since it reached the East Coast six weeks ago, washed out most of the Masters practice rounds Monday.

Heavy rain began before dawn and when it didn't let up by noon (EST), officials closed the Augusta National course.

Johnny Miller, a former U.S. Open and British Open champion who has never won the Masters but finished in second place for the third time last year — two strokes behind Tom Watson — braved the elements Monday morning to play eight holes.

"I feel it's important to get in all the practice here I can, even in the rain," said Miller while toweling himself off in the locker room. "I've shown I can play this course by finishing second so many times and feel I just need a little edge to make a run at first."

Miller, who will be 35 later this month, has been playing well this year. He won $500,000 by capturing a four-player, $1 million event in South Africa and has earned more than $112,000 in the United States — winning at San Diego and taking second in Hawaii.

"I feel good about my game," said Miller who returned to the victory column in 1980 after a four-year slump. "I'm like a young player again."

Miller said the greens at Augusta "are lightning fast and the rain hasn't seemed to change that. I hit some great approach shots today, shots that landed just a couple of feet from the pin, but the way the greens are playing, they rolled clean off."

Defending champion Watson was

out on the practice tee Monday afternoon despite the continuing rain.

The field for this week's Masters, scheduled to begin Thursday, remained at 76 Monday when the addition of Danny Edwards who won the Greater Greensboro Open Sunday was offset by the withdrawal of Sammy Rachels because of a bad back.

The weather was expected to clear today with temperatures dropping 10 degrees into the 50s and the wind picking up to 15-20 mph. The long-range forecast predicted rain would return Friday, possibly delaying second-round play.

Edwards, who played in two previous Masters — in 1974 as a member of the Walker Cup team and in 1977 after winning the previous week at Greensboro — became a last-minute entry this year when his 3-over-par, wind-blown 75 Sunday gave him a one-stroke victory over Bob Ciampett.

"I just allowed something to happen," said Edwards. "Lately, in my desire to do well, I may have made it difficult on myself. This time I just allowed myself to go out and play and not be too concerned with how much over or under I was."

The victory was worth $54,000 to Edwards who had won only $4,547 previously this year and earned him a berth in next week's Tournament of Champions as well as this week's Masters.

Five-time Masters champion Jack Nicklaus practiced at the Augusta National four days last week before going to his Florida home for the weekend.

Nicklaus hasn't won at Augusta since 1975, but he's been second twice, (tying Miller last year), third once and fourth once since. The 42-year-old "Golden Bear" missed the cut in his last two outings — at Inverrary and the Tournament Players Championship — but earlier this year lost in a playoff to Tom Kite in the Bay Hill Classic, had a last-day 64 to finish second at San Diego, and tied for third in the Crosby.

"I felt I played real good," said Nicklaus who is expected back in time to get in another round Tuesday afternoon. "I'd been concerned about my long game and that seemed to be coming around. I had a lot of work to do and the way things went left me in a good frame of mind."

BYU favored to win 24-team golf tourney

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI)—National champion Brigham Young, featuring All-Americas Keith Clearwater and Rick Fehr, is favored to win the 36th annual Western Intercollegiate Golf Championship starting Tuesday at the Pasatiempo Golf Course.

The Cougars won the Western title last year enroute to the collegiate championship with virtually the same team. Repeating here, though, may be tough because the field includes currently No. 1 ranked UCLA plus such other teams as Southern California, San Diego State, Arizona State, Fresno State, Oregon and San Jose State.

A total of 21 teams and 144 players are in the field.

Canyon Springs men to meet

TWIN FALLS — The Canyon Springs Men's Golf Association will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the clubhouse.

A two-man best ball with blind draw will be held before the meeting. Golfers should tee off between 3 and 5 p.m.

Waters: Football has violators

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan State football Coach Muddy Waters said Monday he knows of shocking recruiting violations, including one school's offer of $6,000 to a player who decided to play for the Spartans instead of the alleged offender.

Waters made the comment at a news conference called to discuss spring practice and the 1982 season.

Commenting on the heels of remarks by Notre Dame basketball Coach Digger Phelps about illicit basketball recruiting, Waters said recruiting violations are "absolutely" as widespread in football as in basketball.

"Some of the things I know would shock you — I know they shocked me," said the former small college coach, who came to Michigan State from Saginaw Valley State College in 1980.

Waters said one of his players was recently investigated by the NCAA because of offers made him by another school.

"I called him in when I found out and asked him what had happened. He said the school had offered him $6,000 in an envelope," Waters said.

The coach said the athlete turned the offer down because "his mother wouldn't let him go there." He did not identify the player.

Waters said he believes such violations are more common that many believe, and said he would not oppose "instant dismissal" of any coach found guilty.

The coach said he did not, however, report the incidents to the NCAA because he had no proof of the allegations.

Utahns win ski jump crowns

SNOW BASIN, Utah (UPI) — Utahns Doug MacIssac and Craig Haaser each finished first respectively in the professional and amateur divisions Monday in the 1982 National Gelande Ski Jumping Championships at Snow Basin Ski Resort.

MacIsaac, of Midway, Utah, captured the pro division with a best jump of 219 feet off the Mcose Mound on Snow Basin's Middle Bowl Run. Mike Woolsey of Snow Basin, the leader in Saturday's qualifying, was second with a jump of 209.

Haaser, of Ogden, Utah, had the best amateur jump of 165 feet Monday, while Doug Henson of Pocatello was a surprising second in the amateur division with a best of 159.

Sikma wins NBA player honor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seattle's Jack Sikma, who averaged 24.5 points and 14.3 rebounds in four games last week, Monday was named the NBA Player of the Week.

Sikma, the NBA's second leading rebounder with a 12.4 per game average, finished the week scoring 29 points on 13-for-19 shooting and hauling in 16 rebounds in the Sonics 140-116 drubbing of Denver.

Wade upset in tourney opener

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Duk Hee Lee of Korea upset Virginia Wade 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 Monday before rain drowned out first-round play in the $200,000 Family Circle Cup tennis tournament.

"The rain came just too late to help me," said Wade, a 1977 Wimbledon champion now rated 47th in the latest Women's Tennis Association rankings.

"I could have used a respite," she said after her three-hour struggle against Lee.

The rain forced officials to reschedule several first-round matches for today.

Eight of the world's 10 top-ranked female players are competing for a share of the prize money in the 10th Family Circle Cup at the Sea Pines Racquet Club.

The field boasts defending champion Chris Evert-Lloyd, ranked first in the world and bidding for her seventh cup title. Other contenders include Martina Navratilova, Andrea Jaeger, Hana Mandlikova and Pam Shriver.

Tracy Austin, ranked third in the WTA ratings, is sidelined with injuries and will miss the action, tournament spokeswoman Mary Kelly said. Seventh-ranked Sylvia Hanika of West Germany also is not playing.

Williams new skipper at BC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gary Williams, basketball coach at American University for four seasons, Monday revealed he is moving back to Boston College as head coach to replace Dr. Tom Davis, the man he assisted at both BC and Lafayette.

Rick Vaughn, sports information director at American, said Williams had decided to take the new job. Williams was breaking the news to his team and could not immediately be reached for comment.

After breaking the news to his team, Williams said his decision to go to Boston College was not easy.

"It was a very tough decision for me to leave All particularly with the players we have returning and the friends and contacts I've made here," Williams said.

In four seasons at American, Williams, 34, put together a 72-42 record despite playing home games in an ancient gymnasium at Fort Myer, five miles from campus in Arlington, Va.

He guided AU to 24-6 and 21-9 records the past two seasons, capped by National Invitation Tournament appearances.

Williams turned down offers to coach at North Carolina-Charlotte and Duquesne in recent weeks, but could not resist going back to BC.

Magic Valley wins six of 15 divisions

Pocatello player wins racquetball title

TWIN FALLS — Pocatello's Danny Green defeated Boise's Gene Gibbs to win the men's singles title in the Idaho State Open Racquetball Championships completed early Monday morning at THE CLUB.

Magic Valley players placed first in six of the 15 divisions of the tourney.

Dennis Summers of Twin Falls won the men's C division, Rupert's Clint Nelson won the men's D division, Chris Nelson of Twin Falls took first in the women's D division, Burley's Dennis Bischoff and Dan Roberts won the men's B doubles, Burley's Kimberly Robertson won the women's C division and Cindy Bond of Twin Falls teamed with Jerome's J.C. Burdick to win the women's B doubles.

Bob Boice of Rexburg won the men's seniors division (for players 30 years or older) while Jon Gilman of Ontario, Ore., took the boys' juniors (13-16 years) and Gary Jones of Idaho Falls won the boys' sub-juniors (12 and under).

The top women's division was Class B and Nancy Rogers of Ontario, Ore., took the title.

Second place winners from the Magic Valley included Lynn and Wayne Davids of Burley in the men's C doubles, Vee Barton and Shirley Baumert of Twin Falls in the women's B doubles and Linda Larsen of Twin Falls in the women's seniors. Baumert was third in the women's seniors.

The tourney attracted 147 entrants and more than 300 matches were played. The three tourney days lasted from 7:30 a.m. until well after midnight.

According to tourney director Dan Travalille, several of the top contenders did not reach the finals and that may have been because of the large number of matches.

The final results:

Men's open singles — 1. Dan Green, Pocatello; 2. Gene Gibbs, Boise; 3. Mike Anderson, Pocatello; 4. Eddie Carr, Boise; Consolation, Kevin Blake, Twin Falls.

Stocks wander, close mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices drifted to a mixed close Monday.

The market's rally efforts succumbed to profit-taking and some nervousness about developments in the Falkland Islands and the Iran-Iraq war.

Trading was slow.

The Dow Jones industrial average, fluctuating narrowly between the minus and plus columns throughout the day, fell 3.24 points to 835.33. The Dow, a 5.33-point winner Friday, gained 20.65 last week overall for its third consecutive weekly advance.

The New York Stock Exchange index declined 0.18 to 66.04 and the price of an average share decreased 8 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.39 to 114.73. Advances narrowly edged declines 735-719 among the 1,675 issues traded.

Big Board volume came to 46,900,000 shares compared with 59,800,000 traded Friday.

Analysts said profit takers selling cheaply-bought stocks won out over investors who believe there still is some rally sentiment in the market.

They said nervousness about news developments also could have contributed to the market's unexpectedly quick retreat from Friday's rally and its subsequent fluctuation.

Shares on the London Stock Exchange plunged in the wake of the British government's dispatch of a naval task force to clear invading Argentine troops from the islands.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 54,542,320 shares compared with 69,097,600 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 1.21 to 263.65 and the price of a share decreased 5 cents. Declines topped advances 303-254 among the 781 issues traded. Composite volume came to 3,552,600 shares compared with 4,334,095 Friday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks fell 0.35 to 178.21.

On the NYSE trading floor, Sony was the most active issue, down ¼ to 14 in trading that included a block of 900,000 shares at 14.

Exxon was the second most active issue, down ⅜ to 28¾ with a block of 200,000 shares at 28½. Its office systems unit introduced two new information processor aids.

Ocean Drilling & Exploration was third on the active list, up 1¼ to 22⅝ with a block of 350,000 at 22½.

General Motors declined ⅜ to 41¾, Ford ⅛ to 21¾ and Chrysler ⅛ to 4¾. GM and Ford reported higher late March domestic car sales while Chrysler suffered a drop.

On the Amex, Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, down ¼ to 6⅞. Key Pharmaceuticals was second, up ⅛ to 24, followed by Gulf Oil of Canada, down ⅜ to 10¼.

Car sales pick up in late March but still drag

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. both reported increases in car sales for the final 10 days of March.

That helped boost U.S. sales 23 percent over 1981, but automakers said Monday that sales for the month dropped equally, making it the worst selling rate since 1975.

In the final third of the month, U.S. automakers sold 236,937 cars compared with 192,638 a year ago, up 23 percent.

Sales for the month, however, were 575,608 compared to 719,044 a year ago, a 23 percent drop with the worst selling rate since 1975.

In the first quarter of 1982, U.S. automakers posted sales down 19.2 percent over the first three months of last year. Import figures and an industry sales total for the month were to be made available later.

GM's 53 percent increase in sales in the last 10 days of the month over 1981 was prompted by car buyers' final chance at its "Let's Get Moving" rebate plan. GM noted, however, that the last 10 days of March, 1981 was a poor selling period that followed the company's first-ever rebates.

The No. 1 automaker's sales of 349,506 cars in March were down 23 percent from 437,884 sold in the same month last year. GM's sales to date for 1982 are down 20.1 percent from the first quarter of 1981.

Ford Motor Co. posted a sales increase in the final 10 days — a modest 3.2 percent over last year. The automaker's sales for March were 135,210, down 17.8 percent, the smallest decline among the U.S. automakers.

In the first three months of 1982, Ford's sales were down 11.3 percent.

Chrysler Corp. said it sold 7 percent fewer cars in the final 10 days of the month. The automaker's sales of 72,627 autos for March was down 24 percent. Chrysler sales in the first quarter dropped 18 percent from 1981.

Volkswagen of America, Inc. sold 32.8 percent fewer cars in the final 10 days. The automaker's March sales of 9,987 were down 40 percent from 16,320 in 1981.

VW's sales for the first quarter dropped 49.5 percent over the opening three months of 1981.

Flood insurance a good policy

Universal Press Syndicate

Be warned by what happened recently in Fort Wayne, Ind., when the three rivers of Fort Wayne and surrounding Allen County, swollen by rain and spring thaw, jumped their banks.

Almost everyone with a house or store in the floodplain area was eligible for cheap flood insurance. But of the 10,992 homeowners or business proprietors in the "hazard area" affected, only 778 actually had taken out flood insurance.

The total coverage of these policies was $22 million, a tiny percentage of the property values wiped out by the roaring waters.

The moral is abundantly clear: Everyone — everyone — who owns property in a floodplain eligible for federal flood insurance should look at once into obtaining this unique protection. The typical homeowners insurance policy does not cover flood damage; check your own policy to confirm.

Federal flood insurance has been available to us since 1968 — and yet it seems to be among the best-kept secrets in Washington.

The program has two goals: To offer insurance protection to owners of homes, stores and other businesses in flood-prone areas and to stimulate communities to take action to reduce the danger of property damage and loss of life from floods.

To reach these goals, the program has two phases of insurance. In the first, or emergency, phase, as soon as a community signs up for the program and takes some preliminary, minimal steps for better floodplain management, a basic amount of insurance becomes available at government-subsidized rates.

In this first phase, maximum insurance on a single family home is limited to $35,000, coverage on larger residential and business buildings is limited to $100,000. Contents of a one-family house can be insured up to $10,000 and of a multifamily or business building up to $100,000.

Later, after a detailed study of the flood-prone areas in the community, and after a plan is adopted locally to protect new construction against flood damage, the regular flood insurance program takes effect. This has much higher coverage limits — up to $185,000 for a one-family home and $60,000 for its contents. Business buildings can be insured up to $250,000 for the structure and $300,000 for the contents, depending on size of the business. Note: Small business can get higher coverage than big business. All the policies have a $200 deductible.

The cost is modest, considering the risk that exists in some river valley and coastal areas. The average premium in a typical recent year (1980) was only $89 for the federally subsidized emergency program. For the regular program, though, where rates are set according to actuarial tables to reflect the true cost of carrying the risk, average premiums varied from a low of $43 a year in the least hazardous area to $145 a year in the coastal zones — most prone to flood damage.

National flood insurance is sold through regular private insurance agencies throughout the country in the areas where flooding is a problem. There is a five-day waiting period after application, so don't wait until you see a wall of water coming down the valley.

Flood insurance is now required by law in order to qualify for a federal grant or loan to buy or build a structure in a flood hazard area of a community taking part in the national flood program. Specific inducements: You can be reimbursed for taking certain preventive measures and also for the cost of removing insured contents endangered by flood.

Find out now what coverage you can obtain by asking your casualty insurance agent, or call the federal flood insurance agency (800) 638-6620.

And don't delay. The rates for the regular program are set to soar by an average of 55 percent June 1.

Minority firms need help

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minority businesses "could be extinct by 1990" unless the private sector starts to bail them out, a report prepared for the Department of Commerce indicates.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of James H. Lowry and Associates and obtained by UPI, said federal government efforts to spur growth in minority businesses have failed.

Those businesses, it said, are "in a state of crisis which cannot be remedied unless there are radical changes made in the way minority businesses are conceived, structured and positioned in the American economic system."

More unemployment likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top Labor Department statistician said Monday unemployment, already at a post-war high, is expected to continue upward for two or three months even after economic recovery begins.

Janet Norwood, director of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, said in an interview on ABC's "Good Morning America," the unemployment rate tends to lag behind other statistics when the economy moves out of a recession.

"And if this recession behaves as others, one would expect that for two or three months after a recovery is taking place — the unemployment rate would continue upward," said Mrs. Norwood.

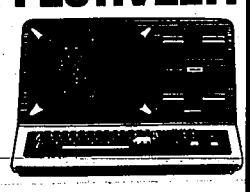

Schlitz takeover in court

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. Monday filed a federal antitrust suit against Stroh Brewing Co., saying the Detroit firm's takeover bid is "coercive, inadequate and unfair."

Schlitz filed suit in U.S. District Court in Madison, Wisc., seeking an injunction against Stroh and its offer of $16 a share for 19,740,000 Schlitz shares — a $315 million deal that would give Stroh control of Schlitz.

SELLING YOUR BUSINESS IS OUR BUSINESS

First Security pays me 14% on my IRA Tax-Deferred Savings Plan.

...and my contributions can be made automatically.

At First Security, you don't have to pay the entire annual sum in one payment, although that is certainly an option. You can also make periodic deposits every month, or double up on deposits, whatever is most convenient for you. Monthly, by payroll deduction or automatic transfer. The more you save, the more interest you'll earn. We can arrange it your way.

AND IT'S ALL TAX-DEFERRED
Every dollar you contribute to your IRA fund each year can be deducted from your Federal Taxable Income. And all the interest that First Security pays you is also tax-deferred until you withdraw the money.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, corn, oats and soybeans were substantially higher at the close Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was up 5¾ to 4 cents; corn up 4½ to 3¼; oats up the 6-cent limit across the board; and soybeans up 13¼ to 11 cents.

Good commission house demand sparked the day-long rally in the grain pits and soybean complex, despite selling by commercial firms.

Many corn and wheat contracts touched buy-stops as prices advanced.

Some increase in country movement was noted during the session, however there was enough demand to keep the market higher.

Traders said the effect of the takeover of the Falkland Islands by Argentina would depend upon what happens during the next few weeks.

The USDA estimated 1982 Brazilian soybean production at about 13.5 million metric tons, down 500,000 tons from the previous estimate.

The outside markets were higher.

The 1982 Silver Bell for Easter

Newest hallmarked edition in a unique collectors' series

REED & BARTON

A trio of tulips, true harbingers of spring, gracefully forms the finial of Reed & Barton's 1982 Easter Bell. Meticulously crafted in shining silverplate, this timeless design is part of the popular "Holiday Bells" series. This is the third and the last edition in the Easter bells series. Other 1982 editions will include Mother's Day and Thanksgiving Day bells. Individually gift-boxed, $14.00.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is another example of good and bad luck in match points. North and South were good players who had never played together before.

We don't really approve of South's bidding. His jump to two spades was a very slight overbid. He thought that his jump to four spades at his second turn to act would warn North that his first bid left something to be desired.

North was one of those players who knew exactly what those two jumps should show; just about what South actually held except that his spade suit should be headed by A-K-Q-J.

West opened his ace of clubs and continued the suit. South had his first anxious moment. Would that club get ruffed? It didn't and South won in dummy.

He led dummy's singleton spade, finessed his jack and prayed. His prayers were answered. Not only did West have to follow low, but the queen was going to drop. South brought home the slam for 11 and one-half match points out of 12. Only one other pair had reached that poor contract.

Note how really lucky South had been. Had East held the king of hearts as a heart lead would have beaten the contract and East-West would have scored 11 and one-half match points instead of just one-half.
